A royal knees-up, and a tribute to the ACTRESS Tori Spelling claims that she auditioned for Beverly Hills 90210 without the knowledge of her father, the show's executive producer Aaron Spelling. Still, it wasn't very likely that she'd be shown the door, nor that her younger brother Randy would fail to get a part in another Spelling production, the 1996 series Malibu Shores, which starts on Sky One this month. Randy and Tori are Spelling's children by his second wife, Candy. His first wife was Carolyn Jones, best known as Morticia in the TV series The Addams Family. Spelling grew up in Dallas, Texas. His parents were poor Jewish immigrants from Russia, and his father David worked as a tailor to help put Aaron through college. The plan appeared to have backfired when Aaron directed a play for an all-black high school. Incredibly, when his father's employers, Sears, heard about this, they fired him. Thankfully, David Spelling was later reinstated. Aaron arrived in Hollywood in 1953 and became a successful actor, appearing in I Love Lucy and Gunsmoke. He produced his first show in 1958, but it was not until he teamed up with Leonard Goldberg in 1971 that he became a household name. Spelling and Goldberg, and later Spelling on his own, gave the world Starsky and Hutch, Charlie's Angels, Dynasty and Melrose Place. To say these shows have been lucrative is putting it mildly. The Manor, the 123-room place the Spellings call home, is California's largest private residence and cost £30 million. Meanwhile, Spelling is mentioned in the Guinness Book of Records as the most prolific producer in TV history. At 74, he shows no sign of retiring. 'I finally got dad to stop work and he died eight months later,' he says. 'Anyway, there's no way I can retire. I've got a house to pay for.'

Malibu Shores, Sky One, Saturdays from 12th, 12.30am

JENNY ECLAIR knows her place in the comedy hierarchy. Her office at the management group Avalon is next door to Frank Skinner's and his is carpeted, whereas she has to make do with grey lino. Eclair greatly enjoys Skinner's act, while deeply resenting his carpet, but her real comedy heroes are the grotesques, such as Alan Partridge, and Patsy from Absolutely Fabulous. 'I love anybody who is camp,' she says. 'Mollie Sugden, Lily Savage, even Debbie Harry and Marianne Faithful. If I was a man, I'd have been the biggest poof ever.' But of course she wasn't born male, nor was she even born Eclair. She is 39-year-old Jenny Hargreaves from the genteel Lancashire resort of Lytham St Annes, whose idea of rebellion 25 years ago was a shop-lifting excursion to nearby Southport with her friend Jill. Unfortunately, they were caught in a supermarket. 'I lied about my name but unfortunately my diary was in my bag,' says Eclair. 'So then I tried to commit suicide by scratching my wrists with my fingernails.' She adopted the name Eclair when pretending to be French in a Blackpool nightclub and it came in handy when she joined a band called Cathy La Creme and the Rum Babas. Since then her rise to success has included winning the much-coveted Perrier Award.

Her latest project is a talk show, Jenny Eclair's Private Function, in which she interviews people on a leather sofa. The leather is helpful, she says, 'because if you get nervous and wet yourself it can be wiped up.' And her guests are paid £500 per appearance to sparkle. 'After all, you can't expect them to sparkle without payment,' she says. 'I don't, until someone waves a microphone and some money under my nose. The rest of the time I'm a dreary old boot, frankly.'

Carlton Select, Fridays from 18th, 10.00pm

SO, THE wedding of the year? Prince Edward and Sophie Rhys-Jones on 19 June? Or Beckham and Posh Spice a couple of weeks later? Martin Townsend, editor of OK! Magazine, which has allegedly paid a huge sum for exclusive photo rights to Beckham's 'do', is in no doubt. But a heraldic expert is not so sure. Both couples had their coats of arms printed on the wedding invites, and Prince Edward's were in line with heraldic tradition. Not so the Beckham-Adams coat of arms, which has a swan, a crown, and the motto 'Love, Friendship'. Says Heraldic expert William Hunt, 'The swan is facing the wrong way, and that is bad as it is showing its bottom first.' For more regal romance, watch Prince Edward and Sophie Rhys-Jones - The True Story, Living, Friday 18th, 6.45pm; or tune into Living's Wedding Season, June 14-25th.

POCAHONTAS is Disney's 33rd full-length animated feature, and the first to be inspired by a real figure, unless you find it impossible to believe, as I do, that Baloo the Bear never existed. The project evolved from 1990 when director Mike Gabriel, who had just finished working on The Rescuers Down Under, started wondering what he might do next. 'I knew that I wanted it to be a love story and I was thinking that a Western might be something a little different,' says Gabriel. Significantly, though, it was Thanksgiving weekend, when the thoughts of Americans turn to the years when the first English settlers arrived in America. Gabriel remembered the story of Pocahontas and John Smith. And Pete Schneider, president of Disney Feature Animation, agreed that it was a smart idea. Disney's experienced story team was then asked to work on a provisional script. 'Because this film does not have the traditional Disney ending, we looked at films like Casablanca, The Way We Were and Green Card, to understand what made them so appealing even though the couple didn't stay together,' says producer James Pentecost. He decided to concentrate only on the part of Pocahontas's story that embraced John Smith, but there is much more to it. In 1614, a British settler called John Rolfe had Pocahontas baptised and then married her. She was given the name Lady Rebecca Rolfe, and two years later he took her to England, where she became a sensation and was presented at court to King James I. In 1617, the couple – and their son, Thomas – set off again for Virginia, but got no further than Gravesend in Kent, where Pocahontas/Lady Rebecca was stricken with smallpox and died, aged 21. She is buried at St George's church in Gravesend.

TO CELEBRATE the 100th anniversary of Alfred Hitchcock's birth, Sci-Fi has scheduled a Hitchcock Weekend, to include his great films Psycho, Vertigo and The Birds, as well as Rope, a lesser film by his own extraordinary standards, even though it would be the crowning glory in the portfolio of most directors. There are almost as many classic stories about 'Hitch' as there are classic moments in his films. Mostly, they concern his coruscating wit, such as his response to Mary Anderson during the making of Lifeboat (1944). 'Mr Hitchcock,' she said one day, 'which do you think is my best side?' 'My dear,' he replied, 'you're sitting on it.' But Hitchcock emerges second best from another tale about the making of Lifeboat. He announced he wanted no background music because the story took place mid ocean, and people would wonder where it came from. 'Just ask Mr Hitchcock where the camera comes from,' said the studio's music department head when the director's demands reached him, 'and I'll tell him where the music comes from.' Hitchcock Weekend, Sci-Fi, from Friday 4th, 9.30pm, to Sunday 6th

On the frontline

Former war camerawoman Jenny Crowther is a courageous woman. Over four years she braved the frontline with the Merseyside police filming one of the toughest beats in Britain. Words: Nigel Blundell

POLICE have declared Merseyside a crime war zone, so it was fitting that the job of directing a TV series about crime there went to a former war camerawoman.

Jenny Crowther, 31, went on the Merseyside beat for four years, winning the trust of the police, who she calls 'brave guys', but not of the criminals, who she describes as 'violent and scary'. Jenny, then aged 27, arrived in Liverpool after an assignment filming the genocide in Rwanda. She believed she could not be shocked. 'But I soon realised how frightening the streets of our own cities can be. We were looking at very serious criminals. Unless you operate in that world, you don't realise how violent it is. You see it on the TV news but suddenly you are witnessing it yourself every day.'

In the most ambitious undercover TV series ever made, her team shot one-and-a-half million feet of videotape during their time on the frontline with the force who have arguably the toughest beat in Britain.

Liverpool is being torn apart by rival drug gangs waging open war on an unprecedented scale. Jenny got a frightening insight into the violent way of life on the streets of a British city. She says: 'The safest place to be if you're in a city which has a problem with firearms is with armed patrol officers. You only feel safe when you're in a reinforced police car behind two strapping lads with guns at their sides.' Jenny says her most frightening moment was when she lost her police minders. 'We were on a firearms raid in Toxteth when we saw a guy running off down the street with a gun. The two cops I was with jumped out of the police car and gave chase. Suddenly I was surrounded by 20 or 30 people who just didn't want to be on film.'

'There was a lot of "I know where you live, I'll come and get you", and it was 11 o'clock at night and very dark.'

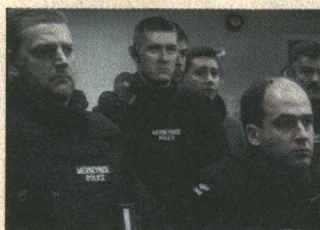

Jenny had to give up on normal life for the four long years of the project. She says: 'It's hard to have a relationship when you spend four out of every five weeks on the road in Liverpool.'

After her four years with the Merseyside police, Jenny Crowther has learned to admire their quiet courage.

She says: 'They're brave people. When they raid a house suspected of being a drugs den, they don't know whether or not there are guns inside. They divvy up the job of going in first - because the first person through that door might be the one to get it.'

Jenny adds: 'The Mersey police may admit to getting things wrong at times or that they are unable to do what they really want in the fight against crime.'

'But the vast majority of cops - certainly the lads on the ground - are essentially really nice people.'

Sarah vamps it up

Although being a vampire slayer is hard work, Buffy, aka Sarah Michelle Gellar, has still found time to star in a controversial new movie, Cruel Intentions. Garth Pearce met the actress on a recent trip to London

Boys and girls come out to slay: Buffy and the viciously cool Spike (James Marsters)

SARAH MICHELLE GELLAR is ready to shock. Her high school heroine Buffy in Buffy The Vampire Slayer is taking on a legion of even more evil foes. And there is a dramatic change of image in a new film, Cruel Intentions.

The movie role has sent executives of Warner Bros Television, producers of the essentially innocent Buffy, into a spin. Gellar gets to French-kiss a girl, promise sex to her half-brother (played by Ryan Phillippe) and thinks nothing of going to bed with any man who takes her fancy.

What's more, she has dyed her natural blonde hair a sleek dark brown and appears in more seductive clothes than Buffy has contemplated in the two years since her launch.

'I went in to the whole thing with my eyes wide open,' says Gellar. 'Part of the reason for doing such a movie was to reinvent myself and another part was that it should be overtly sexual. I love Buffy but I know that when she is finished, maybe two, three or four years down the line, there's a danger of not being remembered for anything else.'

They will remember now. Gellar, 22, who has proved a success in scary teen movies like I Know What You Did Last Summer and Scream 2, takes on a grown-up role in Cruel Intentions (opening here on 18 June), an $11m film, that grossed $40m in the first eight weeks of its release in America.

It is a 1999 version of Les Liaisons Dangereuses, the scandalous novel of sexual manipulation published in 1782. Gellar plays Kathryn, a rich, manipulative teenager from Manhattan who takes on a wager of sexual conquest with her half-brother Sebastian (Phillippe).

It led directly to the filming of the French kiss with actress Selma Blair (who plays the innocent Cecile). Since that particular scene was filmed in a public place in New York's Central Park, paparazzi shots have already appeared in the American tabloids.

'I was so nervous before, I thought I was going to throw up,' she admits. 'That is no reflection on Selma, who is a terrific actress. Not that some of my sex scenes with Ryan were any less uncomfortable.'

Back at Warner Bros Television in LA, there were many anxious meetings: 'I was aware that it was a bone

SKY ONE

BUFFY THE VAMPIRE
SLAYER: FRIDAYS
FROM 4TH 8.00PM

of contention,' says Gellar. 'They are very protective of Buffy. And I know that there are fans out there who may not like the film.'

It is plain that the actress has learned to live with knock-backs. She was brought up virtually single-handed by her mother, Rosellen, after her father walked out during her childhood. She began her young acting career for Burger King and financed her own education by doing TV commercials.

'It was always a financial struggle,' she says. 'A private education in New York is one of the best you can get in the world, but we were barely able to pay the rent.'

'I am not going to pretend it was easy at school, either. There were a lot of rich kids, just like Kathryn and Sebastian, who made my life hell. They soon got to know I was there on a part scholarship and constantly reminded me of the fact. But it made my performance in this movie easier.'

Her days of being short of cash are also over, with a move to LA for the nine-month highly paid filming seasons of Buffy and a new house in one of the best areas. 'I worked hard to get here and I am enjoying myself,' she says. 'I have travelled and done all the things I wasn't able to do as a child and in my teens.'

'Buffy is hard work: I am on set every day for at least 12 hours,' she says. 'It is not just the show, it is the computer graphics and fights. One two-minute fight sequence took two days to film earlier this year.'

She gives an indication of her schedule: 'I finished the third season of Buffy in April, spent five days in New York, a weekend back in Los Angeles, flew here to London, followed by Paris, New York again and some charity work in Cuba,' she relates. 'Then it's back to Buffy for another non-stop nine months.'

But it's clear that there are no real complaints from the weird world of Sunnydale, where her character has to fit in homework around nightly martial arts, as well as vampire slaying at the nearest graveyard with the help of Angel (David Boreanaz).

'The show has transformed my life,' says Gellar. 'It's my first visit to London and I went out this morning really absorbed by its history and beauty. When I was lighting a candle at Westminster Abbey, I suddenly noticed I was being smiled at by some people. They later asked me: "What happens next to Buffy?" It's crazy, but it's nice.'

The story so far ...

As long as there have been demons there has always been a slayer ...

Meet Buffy, the chosen one, whose job is to try to rid her hometown of Sunnydale of the undead. No mean feat, as Sunnydale happens to be on the edge of a supernatural hot spot known as Hellmouth, so there are plenty of strange creatures to keep Buffy busy. A few share her secrets and are her friends; others are out to get her ...

In the last episode shown on Sky One, What's My Line? - Part One, Buffy's arch enemy Spike brought in three professional bounty hunters to try to eliminate her.

Meanwhile Buffy reminisced about her childhood, wondering what it would be like to have a job instead of a calling - her childhood dream was to be a figure skater ... In the midst of all the mayhem, Angel was locked in a storage area by Kendra, a feline feral-looking woman who is after Buffy. Kendra finally found her prey and a fist fight ensued. Buffy discovered, much to her surprise, that Kendra is a fellow vampire slayer.

THE STORY CONTINUES ...

In What's My Line? - Part Two find out what happens with Kendra and Buffy. Meet the Worm Guy who disassembles into thousands of worms. And what will become of Angel after his imprisonment? Tune in or visit the official Buffy website: www.buffy.com/

Thaw and order

From The Sweeney to Inspector Morse, John Thaw has long been one of Britain's favourite TV law enforcers. But his versatility has also made him a hit in sitcoms and dramas.

ITV2

JOHN THAW WEEK:
INSPECTOR MORSE
KAVANAGH QC
PLASTIC MAN
FROM MONDAY 7TH

JOHN THAW thought he had waved goodbye to Inspector Morse for good last year after an incredible success story spanning 11 years and 32 episodes. All of author Colin Dexter's murder mysteries had been adapted for the small screen with great success and Thaw was preparing to move on to new projects. There were simply no new Morse stories to film. But the 57-year-old actor, whose TV creation of the solitary cop who loves Wagner, crosswords, women and beer has made him a big star in dozens of countries around the world, is hopeful that he is poised to slip behind the wheel of Morse's maroon 2.4 Jaguar for one last spot of sleuthing around Oxford. 'We're talking about doing one more but that will be the very last Morse,' Thaw confides.

'I'm not sure how it will all end or whether Morse will be killed off. That's up to Colin Dexter who is writing a new Morse book, out in the autumn.'

A new Inspector Morse is good news for the millions of Morse fans who have a John Thaw week to tune into on ITV2 starting on 7 June. The week showcases Thaw's TV hits including Inspector Morse, Kavanagh QC, and his most recent role as a plastic surgeon in the drama Plastic Man.

Fittingly, it comes nearly 25 years after a rough, tough, aggressive, hard-drinking, womanising, foul-mouthed copper called Jack Regan first burst on to British TV.

Regan was the TV character that shot Thaw to stardom in the action-packed series The Sweeney. It's a series of which Thaw remains very proud even today. 'I recently caught up with a couple of Sweeney episodes,' he says, 'and I was pleased at what I saw. The Sweeney had a freshness and an air of reality that most, if not all, police shows at the time did not have. It had great pace too. I was also very lucky to get on so well with Dennis Waterman. I think it showed on screen.'

The Sweeney is now widely acknowledged as one of the great TV shows of the Seventies, and the catchphrase 'Get yer trousers on, yer nicked' is still familiar to the millions of viewers who enjoyed the programme.

Since The Sweeney, Thaw has remained one of British TV's most popular and bankable stars and he now has an audience appeal that can earn him £1million a year and a luxury lifestyle with beautiful homes in both England and France.

'I think Morse is the nearest thing to me I've ever played,' he says. 'There is much more of Morse in me than there ever was of Regan - I certainly don't kick doors down! I'm quieter and, like Morse, I love classical music.'

'Morse is a rather sensitive, gentle man and I think that's why women quite like him. Maybe they want to look after him. He is very lonely in his flat even with his music. But I do know what that sort of life is like. After my first marriage broke up I had a period of about 18 months when I lived on my own. I am not quite such a loner as Morse but I do know what it is like coming home to an empty flat.'

Thaw has recently celebrated 25 years of marriage to actress Sheila Hancock who is ten years his senior. The couple briefly parted in 1988 but now their union appears stronger than ever.

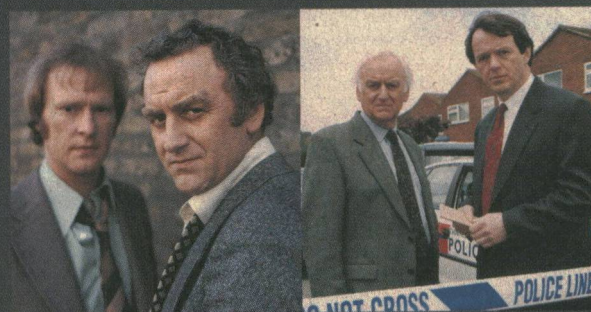

They first met when they were appearing in a play together, appropriately called So What About Love? 'I set out very consciously to win Sheila,' Thaw remembers. 'She was a very eligible lady, attractive, vital and intelligent. To me she was just too good to lose. I set out to win her and, luckily, I did.'

'Sheila is a remarkable woman and I know I am very lucky to have her. There has never been any rivalry between us. When we first got together she was more famous than me but now I think she's grateful that sometimes she's not recognised in some places.'

'Being recognised all the time does still get on my nerves but I'm afraid I'm a slave to my moods so if I'm not feeling particularly happy I don't like being greeted with "Cheer up, John, it may never happen." I never became an actor to be famous which is why I love going abroad where I'm free just to be me.'

● John Thaw also stars on Granada Plus in The Sweeney (weeknights, 9.00pm) and Home to Roost (weekdays from Thursday 3rd, 1.00pm and 7.00pm).

Street life

The gritty new series Wildside looks at the dark side of life on the streets of Sydney. Jane Oddy talks to the show's stars

Wild things:
Rachael Blake
(Maxine) and
Tony Martin
(Bill) in
'Wildside'

LIFE imitated art in the new Australian drama series Wildside when the two lead actors fell passionately in love off screen as well as on.

But unlike their characters, who spend most of the series hedging about their relationship, cast members Rachael Blake and Tony Martin clicked immediately and are most definitely an item.

'The characters had that chemistry anyway on screen, so it wasn't hard to take it further,' explains Rachael.

'Everyone wants romance and sexual tension. It just happened to spill over for us,' adds Tony, one of Australia's foremost character actors.

Both stars have been showered with acclaim for Wildside, which exposes the underbelly of inner-city life in Sydney's Kings Cross, with all its contemporary problems of organised crime, drugs, police corruption and prostitution.

It got a huge reaction when it was shown in Australia last year and the strength of the performances has won the show virtually every top TV award there and put it on a par with British dramas like Cracker and Prime Suspect.

The 60 action-packed episodes centre on a downbeat police station in Sydney and a crisis centre run by Good Samaritan doctor Maxine Summers, a reformed alcoholic, played by 27-year-old Rachael.

Tony plays maverick ex-cop Bill McCoy, who has gone to Asia after giving evidence of corruption against former colleagues, leaving behind his wife and family.

But he is lured back to Sydney when he discovers that his tearaway teenage son has gone missing during a series of horrific attacks on young men and he finds himself back in the new reformed police service.

'He's been around the block a few times but he certainly doesn't know it all. He's an intriguing character to play,' says Tony, 44, who fought off ferocious competition to win the demanding, pivotal role.

On his return to Sydney, McCoy's first stop is the crisis centre where his son was last seen, and he encounters the enigmatic Maxine.

Rachael, who has guested on shows like Home & Away, Water Rats and Heartbreak High, admits that portraying the troubled medic was the biggest challenge of her career after being cast as blonde bimbos: 'I used to have hair down to my waist and looked good on beaches. This role was an absolute gift. Max is a workaholic and has turned her back on a lucrative medical career to help the down and outs.'

But as the series progresses, viewers realise that Maxine is a tormented soul and her tough exterior disguises seething emotions and a drinking problem.

'She's so damaged by her alcoholism and the break-up of her marriage that she's a very lonely woman. Her clients in the crisis centre become part of her family in a way. She understands everyone else's problems but her own,' explains Rachael.

Rachael and Tony are hoping that the series, which has now finished screening in Australia, will open doors for them overseas. Tony recently starred in the movie The Interview alongside Hugo Weaving and was in Europe recently with Rachael to show it at an Italian film festival.

The couple took some time to establish contacts in the UK and are considering migrating to Britain: 'We're both interested in international work and have been getting a terrific response to Wildside so it would be great to capitalise on that,' says Rachael.

'I was incredibly shy as a child. I had difficulty hearing and retreated into myself. An operation fixed my ear and I started having elocution lessons. Through that I started performing. But I don't want Hollywood-type fame. My ultimate wish is to be in things that I care about with good scripts. Wildside covered both of those counts.'

The Devil's work

Actor Peter Horton had to plumb the depths for his role in the new sci-fi series Brimstone. Ivan Waterman meets him on the road to Hell

PETER HORTON used to wonder what it was like down in the red-hot depths of Hell, every time a rival took a job he coveted or a directing deal fell through.

The former thirtysomething star grins: 'I think we play with that idea in our darkest moods. Every actor at some time or another would sell his soul for the prize role. I was no different. We want to succeed and we'd do anything to get there. Then, you grow up.'

Ironically, it has come to pass that the actor finally has – on the screen at least – gone to Hell and returned to Earth to round up some very nasty lost souls in the new drama series Brimstone.

The plot is Faust meets Hollywood, with Horton playing New York detective Ezekiel Stone, a cop who avenges his wife's rape by murdering her attacker in cold blood.

After his own death in the line of duty he is judged by the Devil, alias Gremlins 2 tycoon John Glover, to be no better than the mobsters he hunted down on the mean streets of Manhattan.

Then a mass 'jailbreak' from down below unleashes 13 of the most vile souls condemned to Hell. The Devil promises Stone heavenly redemption if he can round them up.

Horton, 45, who's also producer of the eerie tale, sits on the fence when asked about what's waiting for us on the 'other side'. 'There is no evidence of either of those places. But many people do believe.'

'I figured that if I was going to come back on TV, I wanted to do something different to thirtysomething. I didn't want to be another doctor or lawyer. I wanted something fresh.'

'This was so different from trying to create just another cop show, and so scary. There were so many questions. Does Stone get hungry? He can't die. Does he need sleep?

'It's so cool because he is a character who has been let go from Hell with a certain deal in place. But as the deal is with the Devil, it has to be kind of suspect. Is the Devil going to keep his word?'

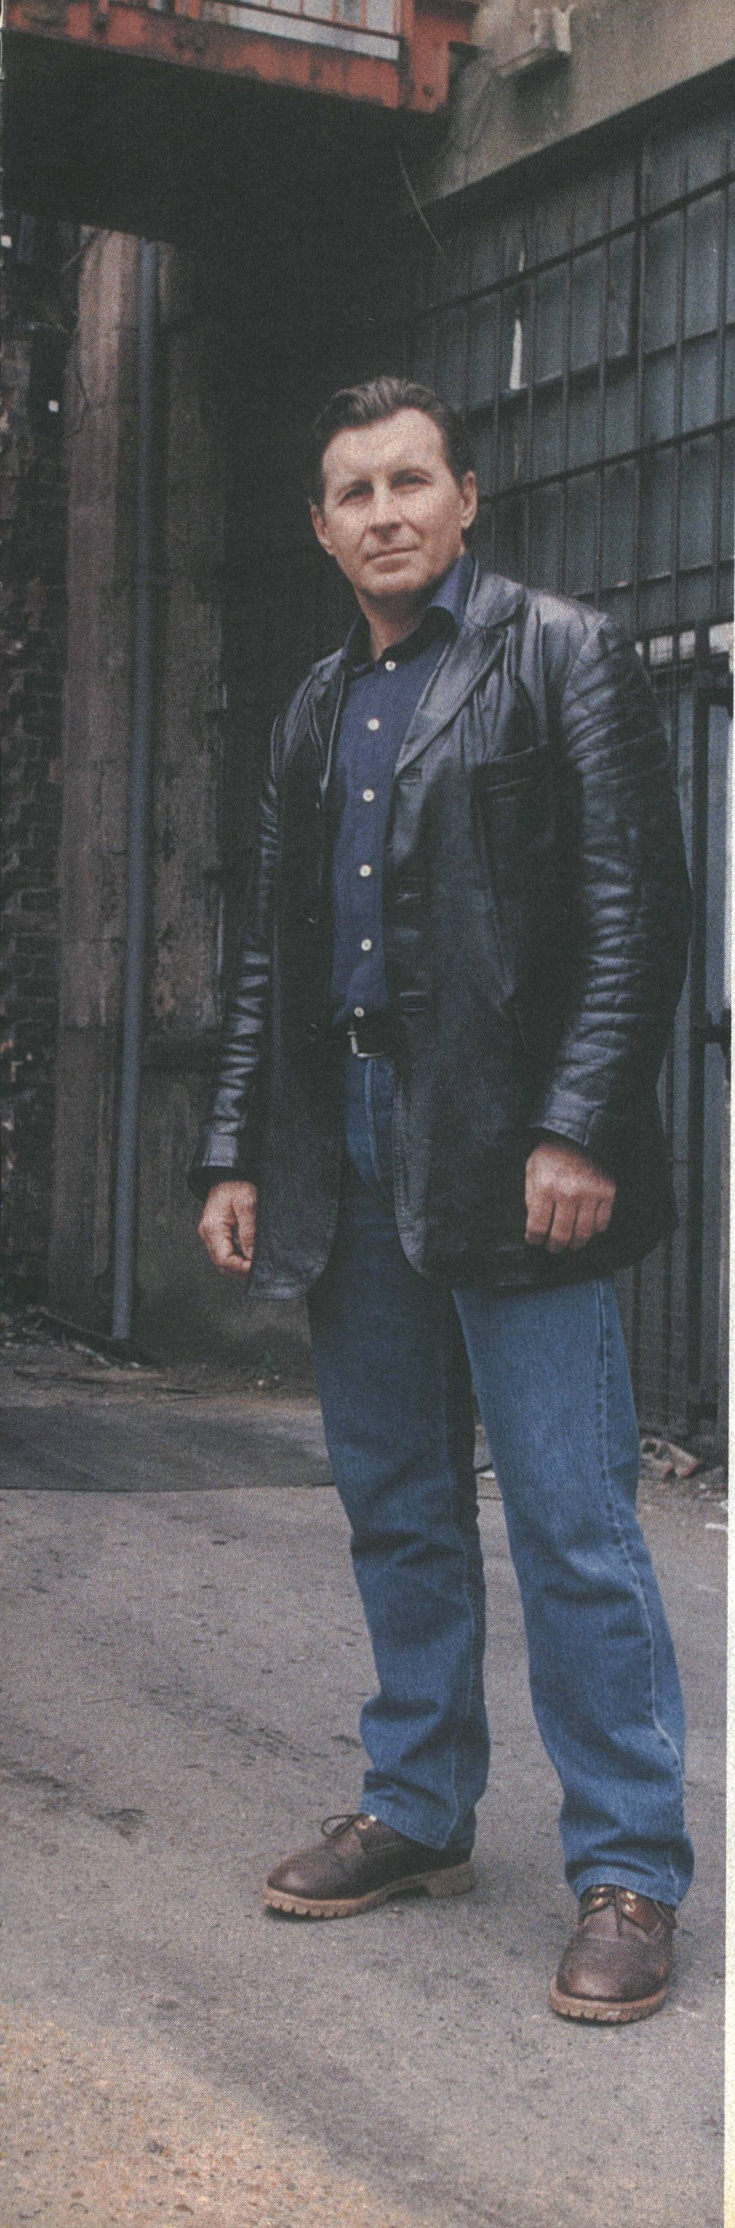

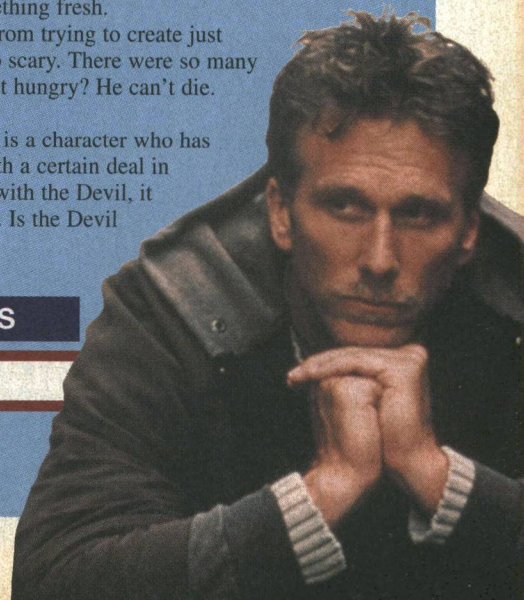

Snakes alive! Peter Horton goes to Hell – and back in the new sci-fi drama series 'Brimstone'

ated Godzilla

The world's favourite mutant lizard trashed New York and terrorised audiences in last year's movie blockbuster, but the actors making the film had only a blank space to look at. Garth Pearce reports on how It Came from the Special Effects Department

GODZILLA was not seen and never heard by the cast, which included Matthew Broderick and newcomer Maria Pitillo, who had to pretend to be in fear of their lives. The 400ft-tall mutant lizard was nothing but an empty space on the streets of New York.

Crowds that came to stand and stare behind barriers were confused and disappointed. All they saw were three crew members, carrying a pole to guide the cast where to look when they screamed.

Godzilla was added by expensive computer graphics over a period of months after the last day of filming. Then it was kept under wraps, since part of Columbia TriStar's campaign to launch their film was to keep maximum secrecy over what Godzilla looked like.

It brought both expectation and unforeseen concerns for director Roland Emmerich and writer-producer Dean Devlin, the dream team who had delivered Independence Day, the most successful film of 1996. But they were haunted by a worldwide three-word advertising slogan for Godzilla – 'Size Does Matter'.

'The concerns centred on whether we would be able to live up to expectations,' says Devlin. 'We were aware that there were trailers and advertisements running before we'd even finished shooting. I would go to sleep at nights worrying about size.'

'The danger is, if you promise too much, what happens if you can't quite deliver?'

Emmerich and Devlin had previously rejected the project several times over a period of four years and watched as Speed director Jan De Bont began casting. He lined up Bill Paxton and Helen Hunt in the leads but the budget grew to around £135 million.

This time, size definitely did matter and the studio got cold feet. But not enough to stop nagging Emmerich and Devlin. They eventually made the film for just over $100 million and it grossed the whole lot back at the American box office in just two weeks.

But first, they had to get permission from Japanese copyright holders who had originally launched Godzilla as a film phenomenon. 'It was one of many scary moments for us,' reports Emmerich.

'We did the presentation of our idea, then took a black cloth off our foot-high model of the proposed monster, which had been standing in the middle of the table. They looked and no sound came from any of them. Eventually one said: 'Can you come back tomorrow?''

Following the first of many sleepless nights on the project, Emmerich was given the go-ahead 24 hours later. The Japanese had guarded Godzilla jealously. The first film was made in 1954 (there were more than 20 in all) and the monster was explained as a genetic freak, the result of nuclear testing by the United States.

Devlin, 36, now blames French nuclear testing in the Matthew Broderick stars as a scientist whose theory about Godzilla is initially ridiculed. But when the huge lizard stomps through New York, his critics are forced to eat their words

Pacific Ocean for the creature's freakish size. The reason it makes for Manhattan is that it wishes to hide and lay eggs. It's so huge, the skyscrapers offer the only hiding place on any island on Earth.

Things could easily have gone wrong. The first week of shooting required up to 200 extras a day, a convoy of military vehicles and tanks, giant cranes, a lift that raised a camera 40 feet into the air, circling searchlights and helicopters streaking across the New York skyline.

'We knew this was a movie covering a giant subject right from the start,' says Emmerich.

One of the film's most ambitious shots was in Central Park, when Godzilla is stalked and tempted with a giant pile of fish. Gunfire – always a tricky issue in Manhattan – was allowed, with hundreds of blank rounds being fired.

Because the extras needed motivation to shoot at something, they were ordered to fire at the Park Plaza Hotel. 'We hate the Plaza,' screamed the director.

Devlin, who also worked with Emmerich on Stargate, says: 'This film was our most ambitious project and we were under pressure to deliver something special before a frame was shot. We think we achieved what we set out to do.'

Matthew Broderick, 37, who at 24 played a teenage rebel in Ferris Bueller's Day Off, never quite made the breakthrough to movie star status despite appealing performances in films like Biloxi Blues, Torch Song Trilogy, The Cable Guy and Addicted to Love. Godzilla is his first big blockbuster.

'I've been a Godzilla fan from the age of eight or nine, when I used to watch the old films on television,' he says. 'The best thing about this film was the thought that nature, which we think we can control, is running wild and coming to get us in the form of Godzilla.'

'My job was to make it believable and find humour in the situation without ever making fun.'

Maria Pitillo, 34, played the ambitious TV journalist Audrey Timmonds. She is familiar in America from such comedy television series as Partners and House Rules, but this was her debut major movie. Hank Azaria, 35, plays a TV cameraman, nicknamed Animal, who will go anywhere, any time. Azaria is known more for being the voice of bartender Moe and Police Chief Wiggum on The Simpsons as much as anything. He is also a long-time partner of recent Oscar winner Helen Hunt.

Jean Reno, 50, plays insurance investigator Philippe Roaché, who cannot understand why so many claims for property damage are being lodged. Reno, who is possibly France's hottest actor after starring in such hits as Leon, Mission: Impossible and French Kiss, says: 'My most memorable moment came when the filming finished.'

'We had acted and screamed and pointed, but no one had seen the monster. Then we were taken to a screening and saw what special effects had managed to invent. I thought to myself: "I've never seen anything quite so impressive in my life."'

Pain, sweat and terror

Discovery Channel's Eco Challenge is definitely not for the faint-hearted. Anjana Devoy follows the progress of the competitors under the blazing Moroccan sun

WHAT makes the world's most famous living explorer fall out with his mates on holiday? Ask Sir Ranulph Fiennes and he'll probably say the Discovery Channel Eco Challenge, the most gruelling adventure race on the planet. 'I only do these races on condition that I don't have to captain the team,' he told me during pre-race preparations under a sultry Marrakech sun. 'I do that for a living; this is my holiday.'

On this particular holiday, despite weather to die for and stunning Moroccan scenery, 55-year-old Sir Ranulph, who captains life-threatening polar expeditions for a living, couldn't even persuade his three Team Heart Fit mates, to stick together, despite six months preparation for the ten-day event.

Could he blame them for not sharing his holiday cheer? It's not the kind of holiday that suits everyone, though I am told that you don't have to be a great athlete or even young to compete (the average contestant is in his or her forties).

For a start, not much of the ten million US dollars the race costs to stage is spent on comfy sleeping quarters. As for the company, I'm not sure how relaxed the competitors are. The 55 teams of four from 27 nations are truly committed race freaks – determined to win at all costs though they say they are doing it for fun.

For moments, it does look fantastic fun to be out there, pitting yourself against man and the elements. But you know damn well it isn't, when you see competitors emerge like vikings, from kayaking in three-metre seas over nine terror-filled hours. Green-faced and vomiting, they tell me how frightened they were as they are airlifted into the High Atlas mountains for more days of racing fun.

In this fifth Eco Challenge, competitors have a maximum of ten days to cover the 480km (300 mile) course, which is dotted with mandatory checkpoints. If you miss one, your team can race on but will not be officially ranked. The seven disciplines are camel riding, coasteering, ocean kayaking, canyoneering, horse riding, mountaineering/trekking and mountain biking. Teams travel at the speed of the slowest person, which means you are shamed into pretending that you need little or no sleep. If you get an hour-and-a-half a night, you're lucky. Team Heart Fit had even consulted a sleep specialist to advise them on optimum sleep patterns.

'You can't predict what will happen when you race with so little sleep. It's like you've been partying for five nights on the trot while still holding down the day job,' says Bill Godsall from the New Zealand team, Wild South Adventure. At the end of the race, you really know yourself,' he explained.

You can take whatever equipment or creature comforts you like on condition that you (or your team-mates) carry it. If you get dehydrated, waterlogged, the runs or suffer altitude sickness, there are medical teams hovering, but if you use them you get disqualified.

'As for food,' says glamorous British model Sarah Odell, racing with a New Zealand team, 'you can forget that catwalk diet. In the dark moments you need to fill your body with food. After such little sleep, you don't recognise your team-mates as friends because your mind goes. I pack Japanese rice crackers, instant tomato soup, coke, crisps and pot noodles.'

So why did Team Heart Fit, who had planned so carefully and trained so thoroughly, fall apart on the second day, leaving British hopes in the hands of Team Porelle, led by aptly employed Risk Manager, Richard Montague.

After the first leg of camel racing, Heart Fit looked good, in the top five, thanks to the specially patented Fiennes camel saddle. The team was modestly jubilant. After coasteering (flinging yourself and all your equipment off a cliff into the sea and swimming/running 15 kilometres to checkpoint two) they were still up with the big boys. But by night-time curfew (6.15pm) on day one, crisis had arisen.

Heart Fit were facing disqualification for overshooting checkpoint two in the sea-kayaking leg. The captain/navigator, Dr David Smith, was never explicitly blamed, but I think the seeds of discontent and self-doubt in the team were sown there. Cold and shivering, the team faced the agonising choice of racing on unranked or staying in the race by facing 30 knot head winds to go back to checkpoint two the next day. The disappointment was palpable. Race director Mark Burnett said optimistically the team could still catch up if it went back, but the team didn't feel the same way. 'We'll lose a whole day and never get back in the race,' said physiotherapist Helene Diamantides. As I left them at seven o'clock, the team was split: two wanted to go back and two wanted to go on ... I felt gutted for them as I left them to make their 'team decision'.

When I spoke to Team Heart Fit before the race, David Smith had said that of all the dangers, what he feared the most was a fall-out. One can only surmise what actually happened up the Atlas mountains two days later when he declared he was withdrawing from the race due to illness. Helene decided she would withdraw at this stage, too.

It would take more than this to stop the great adventurer. Ran, as he is known (he seemed to have all of his toes as far as I could see), insisted on going on to the bitter end with his fourth team mate Steven Seaton. The pair tagged onto at least three other disintegrating teams, and successfully dodged an irate Mark Burnett who tried vainly to eliminate them from the race at frequent intervals. They finally came in on the tenth day.

Heart Fit were far from alone in failing to stay the course. Only 32 teams actually finished intact. The winning team (I won't say who) completed the race in only seven days.

Not for the first time I am told that superb athleticism is not the key to this event. Instead, all the boy scout stuff of team-work, navigation, resourcefulness and helping each other is supposed to save the day.

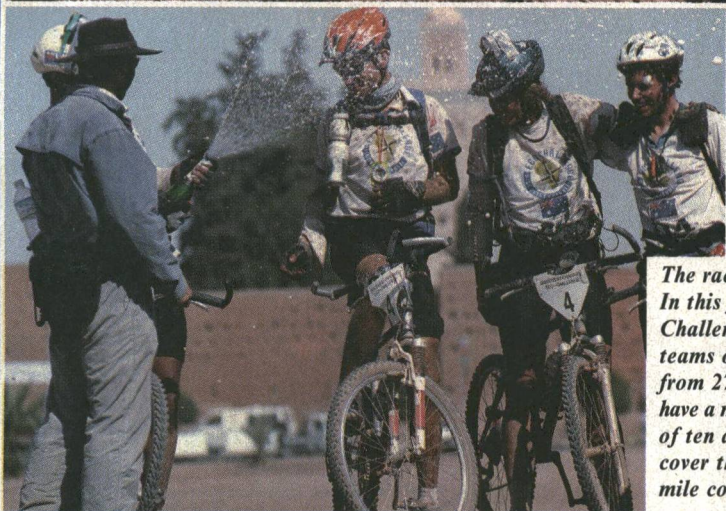

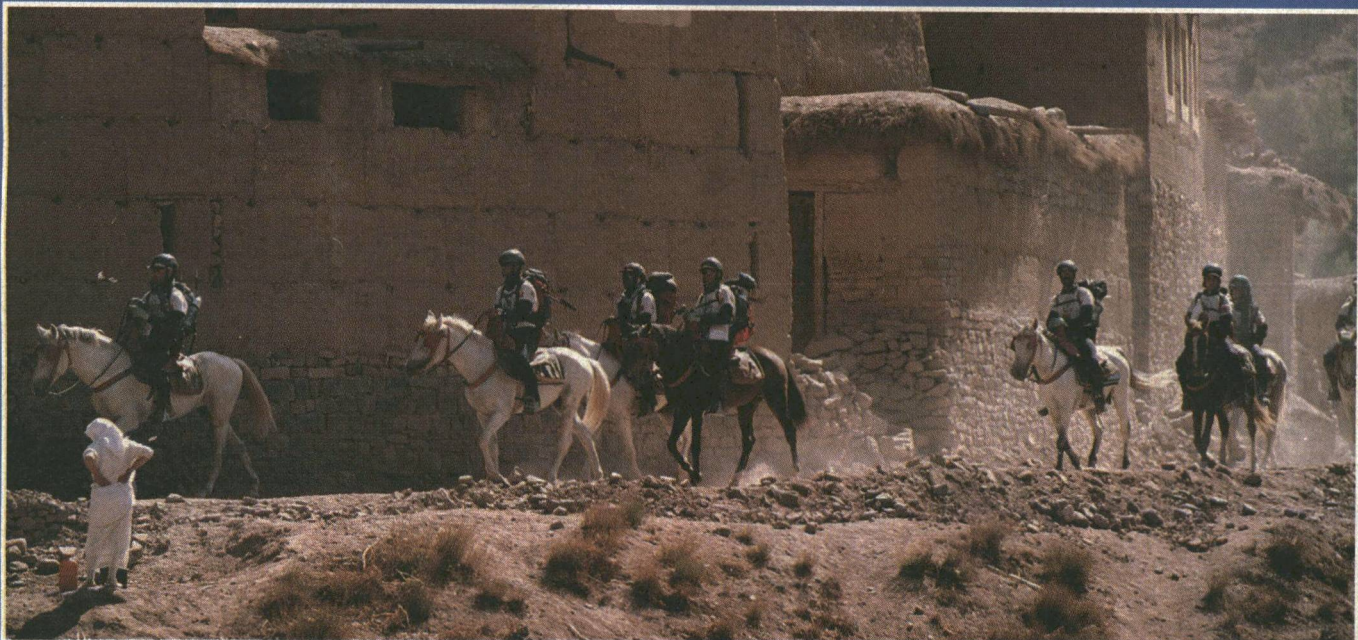

Heart Fit had all that in abundance and still didn't make it. But they can take comfort from Team Urban Edge – the New York city slickers who had given it large at the airport, but ended up marooned and dehydrated on a cliff face after only five hours.

Follow Team Heart Fit's adventures under the scorching Moroccan skies and find out what makes a team of reasonable people, of good fitness and sense, fall apart.

GWYNETH PALTROW is the It Girl of Hollywood. The one name, in the wake of her Oscar win for Best Actress in Shakespeare in Love, that will get any film made.

Yet her meteoric rise has been remarkable, considering her succession of roles in poor-performing films.

Until last summer, with the box office success of the small British production Sliding Doors, the 26-year-old actress had only one hit film to her name – Seven – in which she had a supporting role as Brad Pitt's wife who ends up beheaded.

The key to her success seems to be that appearing in 'little' films has not held her back – in fact, if anything, it has earned her a degree of critical respect.

Written and helmed by first-time film director Peter Howitt, who was previously better known for his role as Joey Boswell in TV's Bread, the modestly budgeted romance Sliding Doors seemed an unlikely choice for the rising star. But this 'what if?' comedy presented her with a great opportunity to flex her acting muscles.

Cut from the same fanciful cloth as It's a Wonderful Life, the film's parallel storylines tinker with the forces of fate to show us how drastically different her character's life would have been had she missed a tube train.

Using a variation of the English accent she perfected for the Jane Austen adaptation Emma, Paltrow is never less than excellent in this quasi-dual role and receives impeccable support from her co-stars, Four Weddings and a Funeral's John Hannah and up-and-coming Irish actor John Lynch.

The film proved to be a box office hit and earned her deservedly good notices. In fact, until her emotional acceptance speech at the Oscars in March, Paltrow had suffered very little personal criticism. Hollywood continues to adore her and her price for a film has leapt from around $2m to $10m in the space of a few weeks.

But Paltrow, with her polished education at New York's most expensive school for girls, Spence, insists that it has all come as something of a shock.

'I am amazed by the interest,' she says. 'Up until now, no one has quite known what to do with me. I live in New York, travel everywhere on the tube and keep on doing these little movies. I am considered weird.'

'I have chosen films for no other reason than I like the script. Money has never been a driving force and I love working in England. These are things that do not always go down well in Hollywood. The fact that one or two films have at last been a financial success has been more by good luck than judgement.'

After films such as Flesh and Bone, Mrs Parker and the Vicious Circle, Jefferson in Paris and The Pallbearer – all box office disappointments – she hit a winning streak with unlikely projects.

She was impressive in the lead of the aforementioned Emma during the Jane Austen revival of 1996 and made a glacially beautiful Estella in the 1998 update of Great Expectations, alongside Ethan Hawke and Robert De Niro.

Shakespeare in Love finally propelled her to big international box office – it has grossed more than $100m in Britain and America. Yet she originally rejected the role. 'I was so desperate for some time off,' recalls Paltrow. 'But I was urged to reconsider and once I saw the script I was hooked. It was clever, funny, romantic and had an open sexuality, which I liked.'

On that subject, she even broke her own taboo and performed a naked love scene with Joseph Fiennes, who played Shakespeare. 'I wanted those scenes to look real,' she explains.

'I wanted people to leave the cinema feeling you don't have to end up with the same person at 75 for it to be a significant love.'

As for the men in her life, Paltrow is no pushover. Brad Pitt, who wooed her as if she was a 17th-century princess, ended up heartbroken. Even boyfriend Ben Affleck seems to be relegated to nothing more than a good mate. She chooses not to discuss her private life at all.

Her views against having a high public profile or gratuitous sex on screen are reinforced by her father, TV producer Bruce Paltrow, whose hits include St Elsewhere, and her actress mother Blythe Danner.

They were cautious about their daughter becoming an actress, fearing she would suffer constant rejection. 'I am not afraid to seek their advice,' says Paltrow. 'And I don't mind admitting that the thought of my father seeing me naked on screen still scares me.'

If accused of being a daddy's girl – and she is certainly unashamed of her gushing Oscar tribute – she has a ready answer: 'It makes me feel good when I do things that my parents are proud of,' she says. 'I had a happy childhood.'

'As for my image, I don't think about it. I have great respect for Julia Roberts and Sandra Bullock, but everyone wants to see them in just one part. I don't want that. I would rather not be famous and earn less money, so long as I can get on with my thing.'

Doing her own thing seems to be working extremely well for Paltrow. She will next be seen on the big screen in The Talented Mr Ripley. But, typical of her capacity to surprise, she is also set to perform in front of just 300 at the Williamstown Theatre Festival in Massachusetts. Either way, she will be a big name and force in acting for many more years to come.

IN THE FRAME

LOIS MAXWELL

Interviewed on the eve of this year's Oscars ceremony, Lois Maxwell, the former Miss Money Penny in the James Bond movies, proves that she knows a good film when she sees one.

What's your favourite movie and why?
Right now it's Shakespeare in Love because I saw it very recently and it's fresh in my mind. I think it's absolutely stunning.

Who is your favourite movie actor?
William Holden. He had such tremendous animal intensity.

Who is your favourite actress?
Judi Dench, because she can make you believe in her totally in any role.

What's your first movie memory?
The first film I ever remember seeing was Kings Row with Ronald Reagan. He played a soldier who lost his legs and I wept. Then years later in Hollywood I starred with him in That Hagen Girl and it was such a thrill, particularly as I won a Golden Globe for it.

What's your favourite movie memory?
Making the film of the opera Aida in Rome with Sophia Loren. I played an Egyptian princess and had to mime the voice of an opera singer.
What's the scariest moment you've seen on film?

Without doubt the D-Day landings in Saving Private Ryan. That sequence was just so realistically horrifying.

What's your favourite comedy?
Anything with Jack Lemmon.

What's your favourite sci-fi film?
Close Encounters of the Third Kind, because it was so spectacular.

What's your favourite movie quote?
It's in Diamonds Are Forever when Money Penny is dressed as a policewoman and James asks her if there is anything he can bring her back from Holland. She says, 'How about a diamond ring?' and he replies, 'Will you settle for a tulip?'

Who is your favourite James Bond?
Sean Connery because he really was Bond. But I love the humour Roger Moore brought to the role.
Which is your favourite Bond movie?
On Her Majesty's Secret Service with George Lazenby, because the story is so strong.

MY MOST MEMORABLE MOMENT

ANDREW CASTLE, Sky Sports golf and tennis presenter, recalls José María Olazábal's emotional triumph at the Turespaña Masters back in March 1997. Interview by ROSS BIDDISCOMBE.

'This might not be a memorable tournament for most people, but it sticks in my mind because it was José María Olazábal's first victory after 18 months off the Tour because of injury.
 'By this tournament, he'd been back on Tour for four weeks and our coverage followed him every day to see if he was going to get back to his best. He'd shot a 65 in Dubai three weeks before, then nearly won in Portugal. Now he came from two shots back in the last round to beat Lee Westwood.
 'The emotion was running pretty high.

His tears started coming along the final fairway and when I interviewed him on the 18th green immediately afterwards, I had to hold him up because he was shaking.
 'José Maria's a marvellous player and a really nice guy who was humbled by this victory. He hadn't known what he would have done for the rest of his life if he'd had to give up golf - and this is a guy who'd won the [US] Masters in 1994. It was an unusual emotion that day, a kind of welcome back. I'm sure he'll win more major titles.'

Wembley welcomes Keegan

England meet Sweden in a crunch Euro 2000 clash at Wembley this month and Kevin Keegan is in a typically upbeat mood, as Nick Callow reports

England v Sweden Sky Sports 2 Saturday 5th 2.00pm - Live

ENGLAND'S EURO 2000 qualifier against Sweden was originally billed as the penultimate game of Kevin Keegan's four match reign as part-time England coach. But after just two matches in charge Keegan has declared his desire to assume the role on a permanent and full-time basis.

He had initially hoped to combine his international duties with masterminding Fulham's rise from the Second Division to the Premiership. Well, he got Fulham up to the First Division at the first attempt last season, but has since admitted that he could not resist giving his full attention to his dream job with England. After an encouraging win over Poland in Keegan's first game, English football supporters are now expecting qualification for the Euro 2000 finals having all but given up as Glenn Hoddle's tenure came to an end.

'I've enjoyed it so far and I'm through the hardest part now because I only have to concentrate on England,' Keegan said. 'I've had a lot of help, and we all need that, but after the Sweden match I'm finally going to put my family hat on, it's the one that has been left in the cupboard the longest, and go on holiday.' Not that Keegan is feeling the strain. In fact, the last thing he wants is for anyone to put their feet up until Sweden and then Bulgaria have been dealt with.

'For me every game is a big one and they all get treated with the same importance by me,' Keegan added. 'We will get together on the Sunday before the match, just like we did before the Poland game.'

'The big concern, and we have written to all of the players to remind them, is that everyone maintains their fitness levels because some of the players will not have played since the end of the season on May 16th and won't be joining us until the 30th.'

'That said, you really don't need to write that letter because players these days are so professional. They know how to keep themselves fit and don't need programmes from us. We will prepare exactly the same way for Sweden as we did for Poland.'

And that means preparing to win. Keegan does not know how else to approach a game although he balks at suggestions that his tactics are too cavalier. 'If you remember what I said three or four years ago at Newcastle, when people asked me why I played how I did, I said all the rules were going that way. The advantage was going to the attacking team so you have to plan for that. I haven't changed my way of playing it. I've always thought it's about scoring goals and winning matches. But at Fulham we had the best defence in our division, which amazed a lot of people because they think I don't care about defending. 'I like defenders who can come forward and one of the great sights for me against Poland was Martin Keown carrying the ball over 25 yards to bring it into attack. I think defenders have got to be able to do that in the modern game.'

'I think Keown and Sol Campbell were the key players when you look back to the Poland game. Players like Scholes got the credit, but the most gratifying thing for me was Keown and Campbell.' Keegan, never one to stand still physically or mentally, is not just praising his defenders for show, he means it. But no one should expect a negative England display against Sweden, not with Kevin Keegan in charge.

David Duval's modest joint seventh place finish in the 1998 US Open would have been something of a disappointment for a man who topped the US PGA money list that year. Already, in 1999, the world number one from Jacksonville, Florida, has won four PGA titles and boasts the best putting average on the tour. Duval will certainly be one of the favourites for the 99th US Open which takes place at the Pinehurst Number Two Course in North Carolina. The tournament purse is an impressive $3.5m. THE LEGEND CONTINUES

With its scope for very visual, fantastical situations, the legend of Hercules has held a strong appeal for film-makers for decades. A slew of imaginative Italian productions were bashed out in the late-Fifties and Sixties, with such professional body-builders as Reg Park and former Mr Universe Steve Reeves tackling the title role. Two ill-advised movies from the early-Eighties, conceived as starring vehicles for Lou 'The Hulk' Ferrigno and directed by B-movie trouper Luigi Cozzi, hiding behind his Lewis Coates pseudonym, attempted to emulate the playful exuberance of the earlier spaghetti sword-and-sandal epics, but were hampered by poor scripts and obvious budgetary limitations. Audiences could have been forgiven for thinking that the character had been all but exhausted – after all, by the end of the Sixties he had already battled moon men, confronted the sons of the sun and descended into haunted worlds. But in 1994, Sam Raimi and Robert Tapert, the outrageously imaginative team behind the Evil Dead films (they also collaborate on Xena: Warrior Princess), gave the mythical hero a much-needed make-over in a string of TV movies, with Kevin Sorbo in the lead, and these, in turn, spawned Sky One's extremely popular series Hercules: The Legendary Journeys. The show has gained a huge following thanks to its wonderful evocation of a magical universe, its lightly likeable approach and its great characters. With his incredible beefcake physique, wild mane of hair, athletic agility in action sequences and self-deprecating humour, Sorbo is an inspired choice to play the demi-god. Other favourites include Hercules's loyal sidekick Iolaus (Michael Hurst) and King of Thieves Autolycus, played with gleeful abandon by Bruce Campbell, better known to fright flick fans as Ash in the aforementioned Evil Dead franchise. The eagerly anticipated fifth season starts this Saturday with an episode entitled Faith, and viewers must brace themselves for the death of an important character. Sky One Saturday 5th 7.00pm

WILL ENGLAND AVENGE SWEDEN UNDER DYNAMO KEV?

Soccer fans suffering from withdrawal symptoms in the closed season will have their cravings sated this Saturday when England take on group five leaders Sweden in a crunch European Championship qualifier. When the teams last met back in September, the national side, which was then under the tutelage of Glenn Hoddle, failed to capitalise on the one-goal advantage notched up by Alan Shearer (above) in the opening minutes and conceded two goals to an on-form Sweden. But the passion of new manager Kevin Keegan seems to have rejuvenated the squad (which he augmented with Sunderland's Kevin Phillips and Wes Brown of Manchester United for the 1-1 clash with Hungary in April) and they will be wanting to redress the balance this weekend.

Sky Sports 2 Saturday 5th 2.00pm – LIVE

LOVING THE ALIEN

As part of a wildly creative film-making partnership with Marc Caro, director Jean-Pierre Jeunet filled the art house favourites Delicatessen and The City of Lost Children with many grotesquely imaginative sights. It was this talent for conjuring darkly surreal visuals that earned him his solo assignment at the helm of Alien Resurrection, the fourth film in the sci-fi series. It's set 200 years after Alien 3 and finds the US military attempting to raise a domesticated strain of the creatures that have terrorised heroine Ripley since the original film. Sigourney Weaver gives an enigmatic interpretation of Ripley as she portrays a clone of the character. That she also has alien DNA lends emotional intrigue to a story that never skimps on gruesome splatter. Sky Premier Saturday 5th 10.00pm

In just 3 weeks you'll have a six pack all worked out.

Why wait?

If you want a toned stomach fast, there's no substitute for a Slendertone Body Profile in your fitness programme. In just 3 weeks, this revolutionary exerciser can give you washboard abs you'll be proud to bare. It contracts and relaxes your muscles, 240 times in only 40 minutes – imagine trying to do that number of sit ups. How can you go wrong?

Proven exercise technique

It's all done with EMS.* – a tried and tested technique, developed over 30 years, which imitates the body's own natural exercise process. Trusted by physios, premier league footballers, other professional sportsmen and even NASA astronauts, EMS makes your muscles contract and relax automatically, so that every workout is safe, even when you're out of condition or temporarily out of action.

Whenever, wherever you choose

To see those muscles working, position the EMS pads on your stomach, fix the battery-operated control unit round your waist and switch on. You can adjust the strength of each muscle contraction to warm up, reach a peak then cool down, giving you infinite control over your workout. And because Slendertone Body Profile is compact, portable and invisible under casual gear, you're free to exercise anywhere you choose. Even when you're busy doing other things.

Results that count

Used daily for just 3 weeks, you'll see a real improvement in muscle tone and definition. We're so confident that Slendertone Body Profile will work for you, we offer a full money-back refund if you're not impressed with the results within 30 days.

Easy payment

For less than the cost of gym membership, we promise a body worth getting your shirt off for. Payment can be made in 3 easy monthly instalments of just £39 (including postage and packing).†

So why wait? To try the Slendertone Body Profile without commitment, post the order form below or call now on

LOVE STARS BY MARGIE THILLART

Gemini

22 May-21 June ★★★
MARS makes you more sexually attractive, giving your ego a much-needed boost. Expect a flattering proposal or invitation mid-month and don't be afraid to flaunt your assets in order to get what you want

Sagittarius

23 November-22 December ★★
YOU MAY be attracted by someone who is charming or young at heart. With the Sun in youthful Gemini, you'll be inclined to shun serious issues for the first half of June and focus on the light-hearted side of life.

Cancer

22 June-23 July ★★
SOMEONE'S radical or rebellious behaviour might shock you to the core, but you'll have a knack for hiding your feelings. This is just as well because the attention seekers may try to manipulate you this month.

Capricorn

23 December-20 January ★★
IF YOU'RE feeling emotionally neglected or isolated, your general health is likely to suffer. Pay close attention to your own needs this month and don't be afraid to let loved ones know exactly what you want.

Leo

24 July-23 August ★★
AN underlying sense of anticipation adds excitement to your personal life during June. Either a loved one will make good on a long-standing promise, or someone with excellent communication skills will enter your life.

Aquarius

21 January-19 February ★★
WITH the sun in airy Gemini, your mood is likely to be flirtatious. For single Aquarians this may add spice to your love life, but for those of you who are in committed relationships it spells danger and could lead to heartache.

Virgo

24 August-23 September ★★
THERE may be one or two tough challenges later this month, but you'll handle them with ease. A situation or relationship that has been hanging in the balance is likely to be resolved in your favour by mid-July.

Pisces

20 February-20 March ★
WITH deceptive energy around your sign, you'll either fool yourself or be blinded by love. Either way, there'll be an emotional price to pay before the end. Take off the rose-coloured glasses and look at life more realistically.

Libra

24 September-23 October ★★★
IT'S OFF with the old and on with the new, courtesy of a favourable lunar cycle starting mid-month. Some sort of life-changing event is forecast for your sign, with travel, romance or even a new job all possibilities.

Aries

21 March-20 April ★★
YOU may find yourself attracted to a fascinating newcomer or novel pastime, but you'll also be inclined to scatter your energies. Try to be more discerning about the company you keep and try to focus on one task at a time.

Scorpio

24 October-22 November ★★
THE energy around your sign is erratic, so expect the unexpected this month. You may be reluctant to make changes or vary your routine, but, if you can remain flexible and open-minded, pleasant surprises await you.

Taurus

21 April-21 May ★★
WHILE your mood may be optimistic, you'll tend to lack good judgement and commonsense. Rather than making changes simply for change sake, talk over your intentions with someone you love and trust.

1st Jason Donovan, Pamela Anderson Lee
2nd Charlie Watts 7th Liam Neeson
8th Mick Hucknall 9th Johnny Depp
15th Helen Hunt 21st Prince William

FILM	GENERAL
Cape Fear Sky MovieMax 12.40am The least typical of Martin Scorsese's films, this lurid update of J Lee Thompson's 1962 exercise in suspense is dominated by a gleefully over-the-top Robert De Niro. He plays the tattooed psycho who terrorises the family of Nick Nolte, the lawyer who helped jail him.	The Far Pavilions Carlton Select 1.00am There are some great performances from an impressive cast, including Omar Sharif, Christopher Lee and Ben Cross, in this romantic adventure. A British officer in Imperial India falls for an Indian princess who is due to marry an elderly and despotic ruler.

A NIGHT TO REMEMBER

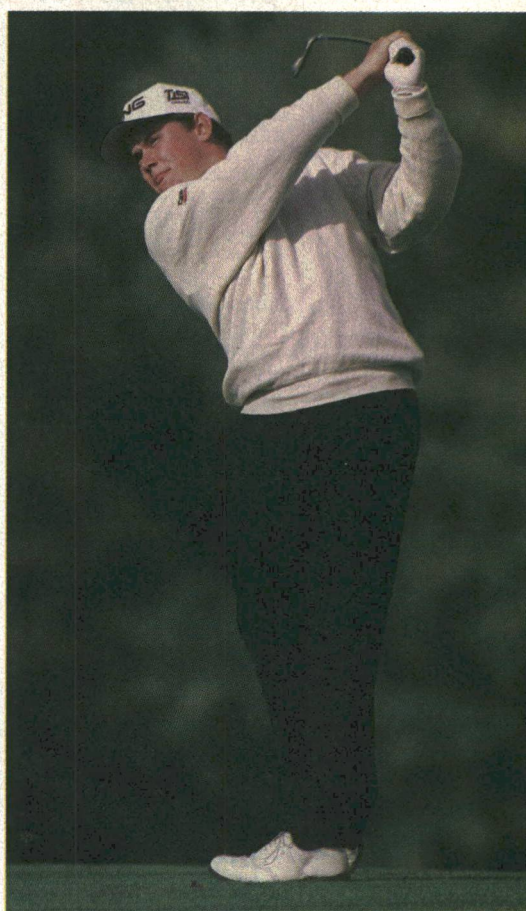

British director Mike Figgis is a versatile, if sometimes showy, film-maker and his CV includes such diverse endeavours as the slick cop thriller Internal Affairs, an understated, and unnecessary, update of the public school tear-jerker The Browning Version, and the devastating alcohol apocalypse of Leaving Las Vegas. He followed that film with One Night Stand, which debuts on Sky Premier this week. It's a visually busy drama about relationships that, while not packing as mighty a punch as Leaving Las Vegas, is still often uncomfortably accurate in the emotions it explores. LA-based commercials director Max (Wesley Snipes) falls into bed with a woman he's just met (Nastassja Kinski, above), after an eventful trip to New York to visit Charlie (Robert Downey Jr), a gay friend who's HIV positive. He is haunted by that night and he becomes irritable and abusive to his wife and friends. A year later, in an incredible coincidence, he discovers that Karen, the woman with whom he'd enjoyed the fling, is Charlie's sister-in-law. It's only a matter of time before Max's wife learns of his indiscretion but the manner in which she finds out is as unexpected as it is funny. Figgis is again serviced by the lyrical camerawork of Declan Quinn (the cinematographer transformed America's gambling capital into a nightmarish neon inferno in Leaving Las Vegas) who impresses with his creative angles and treats us to such beautiful images as that of a tiny jet streaking across a deep blue sky. But Figgis often seems more concerned with technique at the expense of emotional content and One Night Stand suffers from the sort of directorial eccentricities that afflicted his previous production. Like Figgis's jazz score, the film bops along to a choppy, syncopated rhythm and we occasionally find ourselves being caught off guard by a dynamic swish of the camera during a particularly quiet passage, a sudden speeding up of the film or a dislocating jump-cut. The performances, meanwhile, are uniformly excellent and Snipes and Kinski both supply marvelously observant performances. They deliver their dialogue in a natural, conversational style and their early scenes crackle with the expectant electricity of an attractive couple who have just met. Robert Downey Jr also deserves mention for his sensitive portrayal of Charlie. The film's mood is one of melancholy but it's lightened by some bawdy adult humour and the shaggy dog ending is hopeful and upbeat.

Sky Premier Saturday 12th 10.00pm

SULTANS OF SWING

The world's masters of the fairway convene at North Carolina's Pinehurst Number Two Course this week to lock clubs in one of golf's most prestigious tournaments – the US Open. The Americans have traditionally dominated this championship, which is celebrating its 99th anniversary, and in a nail-biter of a final round last year, Lee Janzen, who was seven points behind fellow countryman Payne Stewart with 15 holes to play, mounted an incredible comeback to finish first and lift the trophy for the second time in his career. Young contender Lee Westwood (pictured), who finished joint ninth last year with David Duval and Jeff Maggert is still Britain's brightest hope.

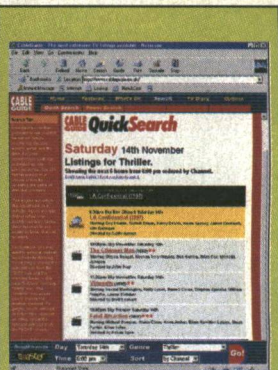

Sky Sports 2 from Thursday 17th 4.30pm

DOWN, DOWN, DEEPER AND DOWN

Illuminated by some haunting underwater photography that lyrically evokes the mystery of the ocean, National Geographic Channel's Diving the Deep emerges as an artfully assembled celebration of the sea. The programme takes the plunge with a group of female divers, who, like the hero of French director Luc Besson's mystical sub-aqua adventure The Big Blue, have the incredible ability to swim down to depths of up to 60 feet without the aid of oxygen. It also explores the crystal clear waters of Tarpon Springs in Florida in search of sponges.

	LIVE AUSTRALIA V IRELAND SKY SPORTS 1 11.00PM There's no more heart-warming sight in international rugby union than the green shirts of Ireland giving chase to the ball. This first test between the Irish and Australia should see that kind of action aplenty if the northern hemisphere team is to pull off a shock result against one of the World Cup favourites. Ireland looked good in patches during the Five Nations, but today will have to pull out all the stops. Ireland's fly-half David Humphreys could be a key figure.	9.25am Malsy 9.30 Potamus Park 9.40 Rosie and Jim 9.55 Malsy 10.00 Mopatop's Shop 10.10 The Story Store 10.20 Malsy 10.25 Tom and Vicky 10.35 Wizadora 10.45 Malsy 10.50 Animal Stories 10.55 Ozzie the Owl 11.05 Dream Street 11.15 The Adventures of Captain Pugwash 11.25 Wolves, Witches and Giants 11.40 Zzzap!	9.25am Malsy 9.30 Potamus Park 9.40 Rosie and Jim 9.55 Malsy 10.00 Mopatop's Shop 10.10 The Story Store 10.20 Malsy 10.25 Tom and Vicky 10.35 Wizadora 10.45 Malsy 10.50 Animal Stories 10.55 Ozzie the Owl 11.05 Dream Street 11.15 The Adventures of Captain Pugwash 11.25 Wolves, Witches and Giants 11.40 Zzzap!	12noon Wilmot 12.20pm CITV2: The Treacle People 12.35 The Rottentrolls 12.50 Finders Keepers 1.20 The Famous Five 1.50 Energize 2.15 Retrace 2.45 Extreme Ghostbusters 3.05 It's a Mystery 3.30 Children's Ward 4.00 Home and Away Day 5.30 Futbol Mundial 6.00 Taking the Pitch	6.30 Dealer's Choice 7.00 The Locker 7.30 The Mix 8.30 Maggie Winters 9.00 I Suppose You Think That's Funny 9.30 Strassman 10.00 The Bill 11.00 Tonight with Trevor McDonald 12midnight God's Gift 1.00am The Haunted Fishtank 1.30-2.00am Videotech	12midnight Ten Minute Preview 12.10am Stripper 12.20 Adult Feature 12.45 FILM: Slave to Fashion Erotic film. 1.00 Five Minute Free View 1.05 FILM continues 2.00 Five Minute Free View 2.05 Caesar's Rude Arena 2.30 FILM: Doin' the Ritz 3.40 Women in Uniform 4.10-5.30am FILM: China Town Adult Nightview is now available as a TV on-demand service between midnight and 4.00am at £3.95. FOOD THE MONTH'S MOUTH-WATERING HIGHLIGHTS

STAR MAN

Italian gastronome Aldo Zilli, friend of the stars, will be interviewing and cooking for his famous buddies in the series Aldo and Friends. Among the line-up sampling his cuisine are the dieting Michelle Collins, who will be languishing on a yacht, and All Saints's Natalie Appleton at the home of George Michael's cousin – oh to be rich and famous! The exuberant Aldo will also be tickling the tastebuds of other stars – James Major and Emma Noble, Chris Tarrant and Chris Evans, to name but a few. Carlton Food Network, Wednesdays, from 9th, 3.30pm

SARDINES STUFFED WITH SPINACH AND PINE NUTS

Preparation time: 15 minutes

Cooking time: 7 minutes

Serves 2 or 4

The flamboyant and charismatic Italian restaurateur Aldo Zilli, author, TV presenter and friend to the stars will be preparing this delicious dish on his show. Tasty and simple, it can serve two as a main dish with a crisp salad, or it can serve 4 as a delicious starter

Ingredients

- 400g (16oz) spinach, washed with stalks removed
- 200g (8oz) pine nuts, toasted
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 4 x 175g (6oz) sardines, cleaned skinned and boned
- 2 tbsp plain flour
- 2 eggs
- 2 tbsp chopped, fresh flat leaf parsley
- 50g (2oz) unsalted butter
- Wooden cocktail sticks
- Lemon wedges to serve

Method

- 1 Bring a large pan of water to the boil, add the spinach and cook for 1 minute or until the leaves are just beginning to wilt.
- 2 Drain the spinach, squeezing out all the excess water. Chop roughly, place in bowl and mix in the pine nuts and season with some salt and pepper.
- 3 Open out the fish flat, skin side down and fill with the spinach mix.

- 4 Close the fish up again, securing the opening with wooden cocktail sticks and enclosing the filling.
- 5 Mix the flour with some salt and pepper and use to dust the fish all over.
- 6 Beat the eggs in a shallow bowl and mix in the parsley.
- 7 Heat up a hot plate, heat the butter until it goes frothy.
- 8 Dip the fish in the egg mixture to coat all over and then fry in the heated butter for 3 minutes on each side until just beginning to brown.
- 9 Drain on some kitchen paper and serve with the lemon wedges.

POLICE, CAMERA, CORRUPTION

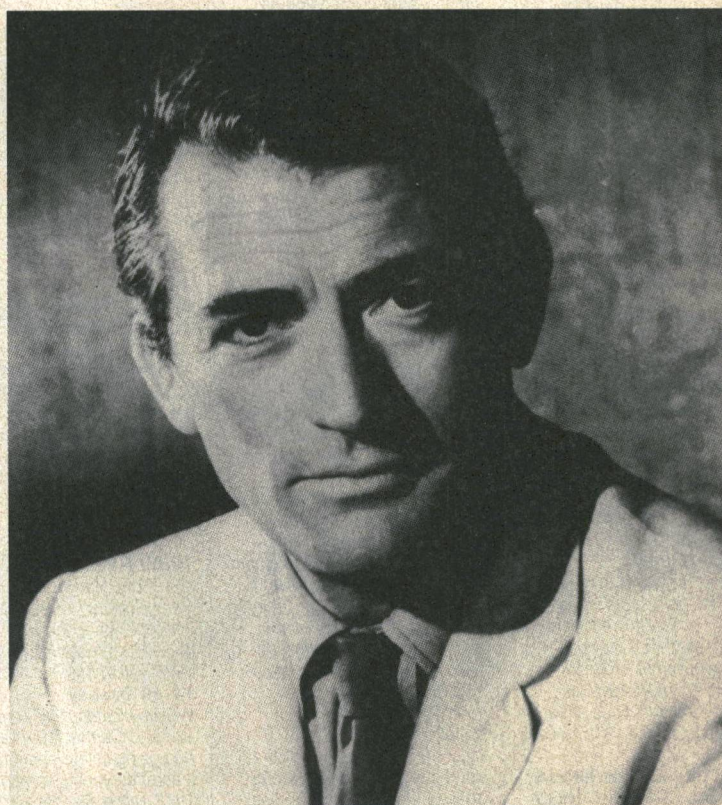

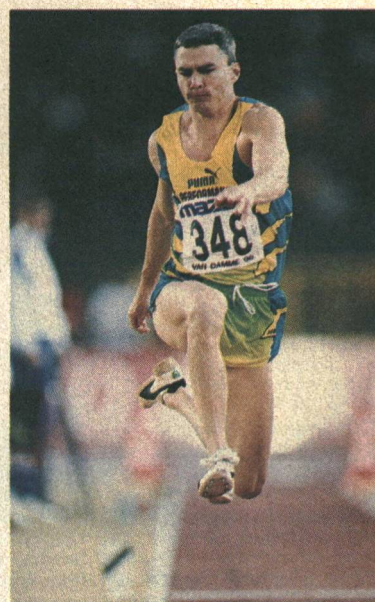

A purposefully paced tale of police corruption, Copland stars Sylvester Stallone as an honest but ineffectual sheriff of a sleepy New Jersey town – a vaguely sinister, tight-knit community populated by New York City cops, headed by the crooked Harvey Keitel. Stallone's dream of joining the NYPD was shattered in his youth when he was left deaf in one ear after selflessly saving a girl from drowning. She blossomed into Annabella Sciorra and promptly married a swaggering bully, but Stallone continues to love her. When the off-duty officers aren't ignoring him, they're poking fun at him, and now, ground down by disappointment and regret, he has wearily resigned himself to the fact that the issuing of the occasional speeding ticket is about as exciting as his job's ever going to get. But then he is approached by Robert De Niro's internal affairs detective, who is determined to expose a recent cover-up involving virtually the whole town, and Stallone is offered the chance to finally 'be a cop'. Writer-director James Mangold has crafted a gripping modern-day Western told in crime movie terms. The film's suspensefully mounted climactic passage was clearly influenced by High Noon and also includes a nice visual nod to another acclaimed adult Western, Delmer Daves's 3:10 to Yuma – surely it's no coincidence that Stallone's character shares the same surname as one of that film's stars, Van Heflin. As the conscience of the film, Stallone is presented with his most serious role since the Seventies and responds with a subdued performance, eloquently expressing an identifiable and touching sadness that moulds the film's melancholy mood. But, unlike De Niro and Keitel, Stallone is not given any great speeches; his character is shy and inarticulate, is never allowed any meaty emotional explosions and consequently comes across as rather doltish, even childlike. Still, despite the slightly disappointing manner in which its hero is fleshed out, Copland profits from a skilfully woven story that never fails to command the attention.

JUMPING FOR JOY?

Armchair athletes are in for a treat this weekend as Eurosport takes its cameras to the Charléty Stadium, Paris, where the consummate competitors from the eight finest sporting nations in Europe will be competing in the 20th European Cup Super League. Britain's men finished top of the table (the women ended up fifth) in 1998. Colin Jackson, who sped home in 13.17 seconds to take the 110m hurdles, and triple jump hero Jonathan Edwards (pictured), whose 17.29m leap ensured he won his event, will be aiming to replicate their success this year.

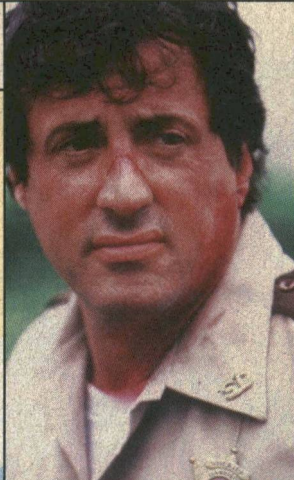

Eurosport from Saturday 19th 4.00pm – LIVE

AN ACTOR'S LIFE

At the peak of his career, which has spanned over five decades, Gregory Peck (who is celebrated this week in a Biography programme on The History Channel) was the very definition of the Hollywood leading man. A tall, darkly handsome actor with a distinctive baritone, he always invested his films with a quiet, iconic authority, typified by his best-loved role, his Oscar-winning portrayal of Atticus Finch in To Kill a Mockingbird. Like Charlton Heston (the original choice for the Peck part in The Omen and with whom he had co-starred in the epic saddle saga The Big Country), Peck's characters were strong, dependable and noble. In fact, so solidly was the actor fixed in the public consciousness as a man of integrity and virtue, that critics and fans had trouble accepting him when he played against type in rare villainous roles – such as the lurid Western Duel in the Sun – or when he tackled darker, more complex characters like the obsessive Captain Ahab in Moby Dick. Now aged 83, Peck has reduced his workload to the odd documentary voice-over or the occasional cameo – including winking appearances in inferior remakes of his classics Cape Fear and the aforementioned Moby Dick – but his legend is assured thanks to his many fine performances.

THE 1999 GOLD PROOF SOVEREIGN

The last of the Twentieth Century

Coin not shown actual size

DIRECT FROM THE ROYAL MINT

The gold sovereign is probably the most sought-after collectors' coin in the world, and as we move to the end of the twentieth century, these coins are likely to become even more desirable.

Struck from 22 carat gold, this glorious coin bears the dramatic image of St George slaying the dragon on its reverse. Created by acclaimed Italian engraver Benedetto Pistrucci and first seen in 1817, this design was claimed to have "triumphantly borne the test of time" as long ago as 1893.

The obverse of the coin bears the strong and realistic portrait of Her Majesty the Queen by Ian Rank-Broadley FRBS FSNAD.

The 1999 gold Proof Sovereign is presented in a regal red case complete with a Royal Mint Certificate of Authenticity. Only 10,000 of these sovereigns will be available worldwide as individual presentations*.

The 1999 gold Proof Half-Sovereign is presented in a blue case, and only 7,500 will be available individually*.

	TALES FROM THE PREMIERSHIP SKY SPORTS 3 11.00PM While Manchester United bask in the glory of being one of the biggest clubs in world football, their neighbours, the once-great Manchester City, can only look on with envy, although they may be turning the corner. Ironically, it was the 1994 FA Cup semi-final when Oldham were so close to victory against United, but then lost in the replay, which saw the beginning of The Latics' decline. Those connected with these two clubs give vent to their frustration at being in the 'Shadow of United'. WILD MAN OF POP

Stranger than fiction is rock's most controversial dinosaur Iggy Pop, who was born James Jewel Osterberg in 1947. On stage he has been known to do almost anything – even smear himself with peanut butter. Backstage he conceived a son, Eric, at a performance in 1968.

Celebrating his weird and wonderful life, VH1 premieres a documentary on his life. It deals with his battle with heroin – which caused him to be homeless on the streets of LA, his marriage in 1983 to a fan he met at a show in Japan and his pop renaissance after two of his hits resurfaced in the film Trainspotting. The programme includes interviews with both Iggy and his son Eric as well as rare and never-seen-before footage of the man performing on stage.

Behind the Music – Iggy Pop, Sunday 6th, 10.00pm

HERE'S MUD IN YOUR EYE

'Tis the season to festival, and if you fancy getting in the mood before this year's shindig at Glastonbury, then tune into UK Arena for a weekend of night time revelry. On Saturday 19th and Sunday 20th they'll be showing highlights of last year with Blur, Pulp, the marvellous Catatonia and many more.

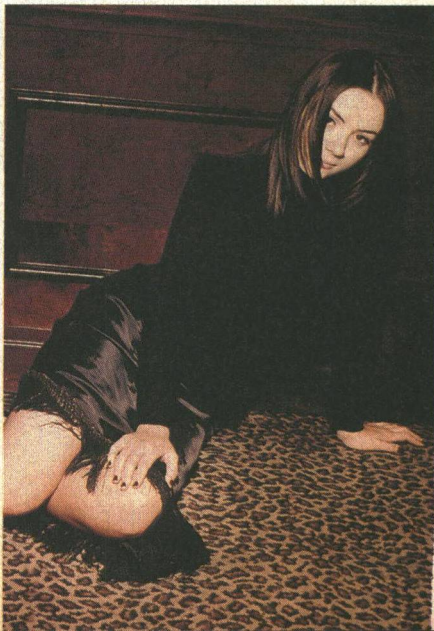

Later On ..., UK Arena, from 10.05pm

FESTIVAL FACTS YOU MAY NOT KNOW ...

- 1 The festival began in 1970 with a handful of pop and folk stars including Marc Bolan. Admission was £1 – and that included free milk! A mere 1,500 people turned up.
- 2 Early rock excavation! Recent archaeological digs suggest that there were regular summer festivals near Glastonbury as early as 5,000BC.
- 3 The Glastonbury festival always lost money – hardly surprising when in 1971 and 1978 the festivals were free. The breakthrough came in 1981 when 24,000 people turned up and its profit of £20,000 went to CND.
- 4 Mud glorious mud! The first major moan of the festival is always the erratic weather. Glastonbury has been known to turn into a mudfest – the worst quagmire was back in 1985 when rain began on Thursday and went on and on and on. To add insult to injury, artists like the Pogues and the Boomtown Rats were pelted with great splats of the damn stuff!
- 5 The second major moan has always been the toilets. Cease your whingeing: back in the early days of Glastonbury, proceedings were slightly more primitive. Picture two rods of parallel scaffolding to support your end, a hole in the ground and a hessian door – if you were lucky!

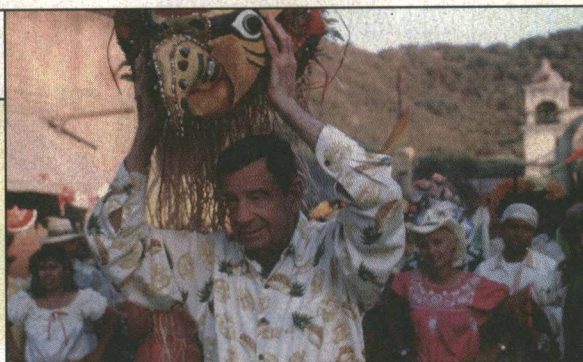

ONES TO WATCH ...

She made her name as Tiffany 'Tiff' Mitchell in EastEnders before being unceremoniously mown down by Frank Butcher. However, the phoenix has risen from the ashes and will be appearing on VH1 to pick her ten favourite videos, which include tracks from Madonna, Sinatra and Michael Jackson. Ten of the Best – Martine McCutcheon, (Friday 4th, 10.00pm) ... MTV count down the best-selling tracks of the decade in their Top 100 of the 90s Weekend (Saturday 26th and Sunday 27th). Tune in to find out if your favourites make the grade and who makes it to the coveted Number One slot.

	LIVE NORTHAMPTONSHIRE V ESSEX SKY SPORTS 1 11.00AM, 3.00PM Both Northamptonshire and Essex have been pretty regular trophy winners during the last decade, so why shouldn't they have their sights set on the NatWest Trophy? Both are recent winners (Essex in 1997 and Northants in 1992) and the action for this much-anticipated third round tie starts this morning from the County Ground in Northants. Whoever bats second may have the advantage: six of the eight teams batting last at this stage of the tournament last year won their matches. As the crow flies

RETURNING from the dead to avenge wrongs is a recurrent theme this month. As well as Sky One beginning the adventures of Ezekiel Stone in Brimstone, Mark Dacascos comes to the Sci-Fi Channel as The Crow in the TV version of the successful movie franchise.

'Even a dead man needs to get a life,' proclaim the makers of the programme. Based both on the movies which began with Brandon Lee's last film, The Crow, in 1994, and the comic books which inspired it, The Crow: Stairway to Heaven follows Mark Dacascos as rock musician Eric Draven. He is senselessly and brutally murdered along with his girlfriend Shelly (Sabine Karsenti). Unlike Ezekiel Stone (who is brought back from Hell), Draven isn't actually dead. In the opening episode he makes a leap from the bridge that joins the Land of the Dead and the Land of the Living, and returns to Earth possessing the mystical powers of The Crow. His mission: to right wrong and help those who can't fight for themselves to achieve justice. Each act of good that he does will bring him one step closer to salvation – and to the arms of his beloved Shelly.

The set-up allows Draven to become involved in situations that are both mystical and down to Earth. One week he might be helping someone who has been swindled; the next battling a dead lover who keeps returning to plague his former girlfriend. The producers have also taken note of the current trend in American series to allow events from one episode to have consequences in a future one – at some point, Draven will be put on trial for Shelly's murder (after all, she's dead and he's still alive, as far as anyone can tell).

A surprise hit in America, the success of the series has led to a revival of interest in the movie franchise, with a third Crow feature in the pipeline as well as an animated series. He may be dead, but Eric Draven has certainly got a life. Sci-Fi Channel, from Friday 4th, 8.30pm

FUTURE WATCH

NEWS FROM THE US SCI-FI SCENE

It's pilot season in America, when studios prepare their ideas for the new television year which starts around September. With the end of Star Trek: Deep Space Nine (Sky viewers have one more season to go), and the unsuccessful launch of the Babylon 5 sequel Crusade, there are a number of gaps in the SF roster.

Two candidates are: The Universe vs Harry Morgann, in which a conman travels the universe setting things right, very much in the tradition of The Saint, and Dark Angel, created by Titanic's James Cameron, which follows a genetically enhanced human prototype on the run in 21st century San Francisco posing as a private detective.

TIME MACHINE

THE INVISIBLE MAN

1975-1976, 13 episodes. Starring David McCallum (Dr Daniel Weston), Melinda O Fee (Dr Kate Weston), Craig Stevens (Walter Carlson).

Returning to the Sci-Fi Channel this month is fantasy genre veteran David McCallum (who starred in The Man from U.N.C.L.E., Sapphire and Steel and the short-lived VR.5) in this 'now you see him, now you don't' 1970s version of HG Wells's classic tale, The Invisible Man. Unlike the 1950s series, which updated the story while keeping Wells's bandage-faced man, the 1975 show completely recreated the premise. Dr Daniel Weston (McCallum) discovers how to become invisible, but unfortunately not how to reverse the process. In the pilot he struggles to keep the secret from 'foreign' forces who could use it for dark deeds – and then in the series which followed he ends up doing just that for the US Government. Some witty scripts (Steven Bochco was one of the writers) and, for their time, good special effects didn't save Dr Weston from disappearing very quickly – although some of the story ideas were reworked the following year into The Gemini Man, starring Alias Smith and Jones's Ben Murphy. Sci-Fi Channel, Wednesdays from 9th, 6.00pm

A BUG'S LIFE

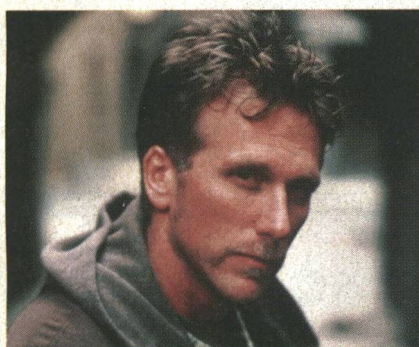

Mexican film-maker Guillermo Del Toro made an intelligent and visually lush addition to the horror genre with his feature debut, the melancholic vampire movie Cronos. But for his first Hollywood endeavour, Mimic, showing on Sky Box Office this week, he deliberately eschewed the quiet, mournful poetry of Cronos in favour of explosive action and back-to-basics shocks.

An elaboration on a story by sci-fi writer Donald A Wollheim, it tells of a species of mutant insects breeding in the New York underground system. Known as the Judas Breed, they were created by scientist Susan Tyler (Mira Sorvino) to wipe out the cockroaches that carried a deadly disease that had been striking down children. The bugs were bred to have a life expectancy of six months but some three years after they were set loose, they are thriving and have begun to prey on humans, taking the form of their victims. The fate of mankind is now in the hands of Tyler and her husband (Jeremy Northam), who find themselves trapped in a forgotten tunnel with a station guard and an elderly shoeshine man hundreds of feet below platform level. Perhaps unsurprisingly, given its title, Mimic owes something of a debt to several other movies: Aliens seems to be the main model for the later scenes, while the scratchy, industrial chic of the opening credits recalls the unsettling title sequence of Se7en. Meanwhile, mention of the Mole People, a community of misfits living in the tunnels, summons memories of the British chiller Death Line and the French film Subway. But despite these obvious influences, Mimic has a fascination all its own, thanks to Guillermo's surreal sense of imagery. His attention to detail is enjoyably eccentric and the film includes such strange sights as a brief glimpse of a man having his hair cut in the rain. The director also demonstrates a mastery of mood and suspense – he has torch beams pin-point selective parts of the screen in the dark, claustrophobic tunnels, withholding vital visual information that heightens the sense of lurking menace. With its decoratively grisly deaths, genuine jolts and excellent effects, Mimic ably fulfils its fright requirements. But, because of Guillermo's fine feel for atmosphere and story, the film also demonstrates an imagination and artistry that elevates it way above its cheesy monster movie trappings. Sky Box Office 4 Wednesday 30th from 8.00pm

HELL ON EARTH

Something of a pet project of producer-star Peter Horton (above), the new Sky One supernatural series Brimstone benefits from its designer grunge visuals and darkly imaginative storylines. Horton, who prior to this was best known for his regular role in the TV series thirtysomething (his CV also lists directorial stints on episodes of that show as well as The Wonder Years and the big screen message melodrama The Cure), makes a suitably complex and troubled hero. He plays Ezekiel Stone (the show is filled with inventive Old Testament references), a respected New York detective who finds himself in Hell after killing his wife's rapist. But Stone is offered a reprieve by the Devil himself (John Glover) to hunt down 113 spirits who have gone AWOL from the underworld. This week's episode, Repentance, is typically unrelenting in its search for action and suspense and sees Stone caught up in a plot concerning a murderer who despatches homeless people in a particularly gruesome manner. Sky One Monday 28th 9.00pm

PLAYERS DE LAS AMERICAS

This week, those football fans still suffering from withdrawal symptoms during the closed season can soak up the sun-drenched bi-annual carnival of soccer that is the Copa America. For the 1999 championship, which begins airing on Sky Sports 2 this week, the ten regular South American sides will be joined by guest newcomers Japan and Mexico. Neither nation garners any real respect on the world stage, but while Mexico haven't demonstrated any discipline or genuine cohesion as a team of late, they still boast some imaginative individuals, including the fiery Luis Hernandez – he notched up four goals in the last World Cup against such daunting opponents as Germany and Holland. The odds, though, are on a dream ticket final between arch-rivals Argentina and Brazil (whose prodigiously talented Ronaldo is pictured). Sky Sports 2 Tuesday 29th 11.00pm – LIVE

The Nutty Professor
Sky Cinema 4.30pm
While Jerry Lewis's frenetic slapstick may not be to all tastes, there's no denying the daring and innovative nature of his directorial efforts. This darkly comic overhaul of the Jekyll and Hyde story, which was recently remade, is his most cohesive and artistically successful film.

The Wonder Years
Disney Channel 10.30pm
Similar in tone to the film Stand by Me, this Sixties-set, Emmy-award winning series evokes a sense of sweet nostalgia thanks to its fine feel for period, its gentle but acutely observed storylines and the excellent central performance of Fred Savage as our young hero, Kevin.

"A Heavy Smoker for 20 years, I made an amazing discovery that eliminated my desire to Smoke in 9 Days..."

almost without my noticing, and without any medication or weight gain."

Exclusive: Important disclosure from Mr. Jacandr , Head Chef in Grasse (The Alps), France

"What happened to me was so incredible that at first I was hesitant to reveal my secret to all those who, like me, want to stop smoking, but don't want to feel as if they are giving up one of life's pleasures.

"So first I waited to make sure that my desire to smoke would not return as quickly as it had disappeared.

"Now that I haven't smoked for over a year, I feel ready to tell people how I did it, and how, to my own astonishment, it was the simplest thing in the world!

"If you'd seen me just two years ago, you wouldn't have thought I was in very good shape.

"I was at the end of my tether, as the saying goes – nervous, anxious, and unable to sleep whenever I was bothered by the slightest problem.

"I was also smoking two packs of cigarettes a day, not to mention the little cigars I kept handy in my car at all times!

"The only time I smoked less was when I was working in the kitchen."

I had to make a choice: tobacco or...

"I would get up feeling tired, and every morning at the market I would have this terrible cough.

"Worse than that, I noticed that with each passing day my ability to smell and taste food was deteriorating, which for me was very serious indeed.

"Because as a chef, losing my sense of taste meant losing my livelihood.

"So I was afraid! I said to myself: it's either tobacco or my career. I decided to stop, and that's when it all began.

"I spoke to a lot of people, and everyone had some kind of technique, or pill or new brand of chewing gum. I even went for acupuncture treatment, without success – I'd stop for a week or two, after which I'd resume smoking as many cigarettes as before.

"You may be aware that Grasse is the city where most of the world's perfumes are made.

"A client of mine who creates perfumes for a large manufacturer explained that he'd decided to quit smoking because he was losing his sense of smell – just like me!

"And he talked about a certain Andre Passebecq, who worked in the area, and who had given him this amazing treatment, thanks to which he'd stopped smoking in twelve days. He gave me a newspaper clipping about the discovery."

A Procedure which amazes even doctors!

"Andre Passebecq first tested his discovery on himself, then spread the word in France. In a few months 1,248 people had sent him testimonials documenting their complete success.

"I read this article and wrote to Andre Passebecq that same day. He answered me right away.

"I appreciated his prompt response, because I wanted to start as soon as possible!

"I received Andre Passebecq's method, and immediately felt it would work for me too. It was so simple, and 100% natural. What surprised me most was that I could continue smoking as long as I felt like it and I could stop without really noticing!"

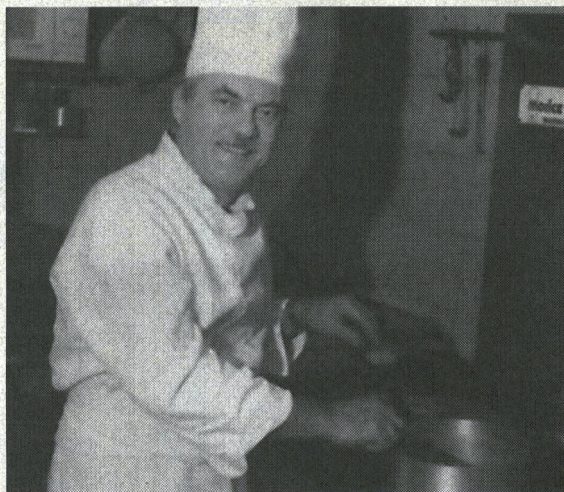

I stopped smoking in exactly 9 days!

"The first few days I smoked almost as much as before, especially in the car as I drove around to do my shopping. I was a little disappointed.

"And then after 5 or 6 days I noticed that my ashtray was empty, and my little supply of cigars practically intact.

"On my way back from shopping I hardly smoked at all, and in the kitchen I didn't touch a single cigarette.

"After 9 days, the battle was won! And what was most surprising was that I found the smell of tobacco extremely unpleasant, so much so that I couldn't wait for the last clients to leave the restaurant so I could open the win-

"I read the article and found it so interesting I wrote to Andre Passebecq that same day. He answered immediately, and I appreciated his prompt reply since I didn't want to wait – I believed in the method, and was in a hurry to get started!"

dows wide and let in some fresh air. For me tobacco was finished, completely finished!"

It all happened very quickly and changed my life.

"It's true! I didn't have my horrible morning cough any more, and my sense to taste and smell – so closely related – were completely restored.

"I could once again savour the delicate flavours of sauces and subtle spices, along with the bouquet of fine wine.

"I could once again take pleasure in the profession I love, and get back to creating new dishes for my clients.

"Now everything is fine and life is beautiful. This summer I bought a small sailboat. I enjoy sports, which I had given up for lack of enthusiasm, and lack of breath!"

I have never picked up another cigarette. For me tobacco is finished, completely finished!

"It's been over a year since I quit smoking. And I have absolutely no temptation to start again!

"I agreed to tell my story in the hope that my own experience will help other people who are trying to quit, and who think they've tried everything.

"Now they can succeed without any feelings of frustration.

"But I'd like to go into a little more detail for the sake of all those who are still hesitant. Throughout the entire period of this "treatment" you feel absolutely no nervousness or anxiety.

"Nor do you feel the need to gain weight. On the contrary, I actually lost 9 or 10 pounds since I stopped smoking!"

Quoted from an interview with Mr. Jacandr  by Elizabeth Kennedy.

Never try to stop smoking on your own. It's very dangerous. And here's why:

Ask any doctor, and he or she will agree that it is useless, and sometimes even dangerous to quit smoking on your own, through an effort of willpower.

Why? Because all you'll be thinking about is "stopping smoking," so every time you feel like having a cigarette you'll be forced to apply greater willpower to resist.

You'll feel nervous and anxious, and you'll probably start gaining weight as you try to use food to compensate for the "lack" you feel in your body.

It's also highly probable that, because of your own nervousness, you'll make the lives of everyone around you miserable as well.

All this can be scientifically explained: your body has got used to tobacco over a period of years, and needs its dose of toxins (nicotine and tar) to feel comfortable.

If you stop all at once, your bodily balance is disturbed, and you'll end up "cracking" under the strain sooner or later.

That's why Andre Passebecq's treatment allows you to keep on smoking as much as you like.

You have to get rid of your desire gradually, in the same way you acquired it – until it disappears by itself, without hardly noticing it, in 9 to 14 days, depending on your temperament.

How exactly does it work?

At first you'll be smoking almost as much as before... but don't worry, that's perfectly normal!

"The first couple of days you'll hardly notice any difference. Then on the third and fourth days, while hardly noticing it, you should already start feeling less of a need to reach for a cigarette.

"And if you do light up, you'll leave the cigarette half unsmoked in the ashtray!

After that things should happen very quickly. You should begin to notice that you've only smoked a few cigarettes, and that you've hardly thought about it.

Then after 9 to 14 days (results from this type of procedure vary according to the individual), smoking should have lost all its importance for you. You'll feel neither the need nor the desire to light up. And that's it, you've quit!

As proof, why not accept this really unique (and free) offer? Here it is:

As part of a new UK campaign to help people who want to stop smoking, Andre Passebecq, in association with Carnell, has decided to give away a booklet entitled "Why and How to Stop Smoking" that tells you about the Passebecq "treatment" and lets you try it without risking anything more than a postage stamp.

Follow in the footsteps of all these people who quit smoking so quickly and easily.

Just fill out the attached coupon and drop it in the mail.

Don't send any money. There's nothing to pay.

In a few days you'll receive your package, discreetly wrapped, with no exterior markings. Then you can make up your own mind whether or not the treatment can free you of your desire to smoke... without upsetting your mental or physical equilibrium.

Does this sound too good to be true? Do you think you've already tried everything?

Well, why not conduct this amazing experiment just out of curiosity? Because you'll be amazed by what Andre Passebecq has to say.

Can everyone feel their need to smoke disappear as quickly and easily?

To date there are already 1,248 men and women who finally stopped smoking, although they no longer believed they could. Their success is documented in written testimonials. Here are few quotations from letters that we receive regularly:

"...I'd been smoking for about 35 years, sometimes up to two packs a day. Thanks to your treatment, I reduced the amount I smoked day by day, with no undue discomfort, even though I was sceptical to start with. Last Saturday night at a party I was surrounded by smokers and felt absolutely no desire to smoke..."

Mrs. Eliane A., Dunkirk
ref: 59140

"...I tried a number of methods with no success. From the first day of this treatment I went from twenty cigarettes a day to seven, and stopped completely after nine days..."

Mr. Jean-Claude H., Wimille
ref: 62126

"...I'm 58 years old. My brother died of lung cancer, and that scared me a lot. Then one day someone told me about your treatment. Why not try it, I thought. So I did, and the miracle happened – I don't smoke anymore. I could hardly believe it, and I was afraid I'd start again, but NO..."

Mr. Maurice B.
ref: 76200

"...I was the type of person who bought a pack of cigarettes every time I went into a corner store. I always needed my two packs a day, but in just 12 days I freed myself of the habit. I waited 3 more months before sending you this letter because I wanted to be absolutely certain my desire to smoke wouldn't come back, and it hasn't!"

Mr. Phillip R., Le Boulou
ref: 66160

"I'm 41 years old and I've been smoking two packs a day since I was 18. I had already tried to quit a few times without success, and ended up telling myself I'd never be able to do it. Then I came across your method, and all I can say now is THANK YOU! It's really effective. I can still hardly believe that I stopped smoking so quickly and easily. I feel great. I'm more active and happy than ever..."

Mrs. Beatrice H., Mele-sur-Sarthe
ref: 61170

"I had no idea how much better you could feel when you don't smoke anymore. My coughing fits have disappeared, and so has my insomnia..."

Mrs. Christiane S., St. Ouen l'Aumone
ref: 95310

"...The result was astonishing. On the tenth day I didn't touch a single cigarette. It all happened exactly as you said it would. I feel perfectly well and I'm so happy I finally got rid of the smoking habit..."

Mrs. Claudine S., La Chapelle
ref: 1060

"Since June 1989, I have completely stopped smoking, thanks to the Passebecq Method. I have never felt any need to light up again – and this without putting on a single pound."

Mr. Christian B., Les Aynans

"...I don't smoke anymore. And I don't have that terrible desire to light up a cigarette that I had when I tried other methods..."

Mr. Eugene V., Aubevoye

If ever an important offer was made to you, this is it. And there are absolutely no risks involved, either financial or otherwise!

Read on only if you are still hesitant to take advantage of this unusual offer.

1. Are you aware of the dangers of smoking?

As you surely know, smoking greatly increases the risk of cancer and cardiovascular disease.

According to studies conducted by Professor Peto of Oxford University, tobacco will have killed over 50 million people between 1975 and the year 2000. In addition, tobacco eliminates Vitamin C from your system, which can result in loss of both memory and concentration.

Sexual impotence is often another consequence of smoking! And don't think it affects only men: many women who smoke also suffer. This is now a well-known fact!

2. Don't you think it would be a pity to keep on damaging your heart and lungs, even though your chances of getting rid of your desire to smoke are now extremely high?

3. If you've already tried everything to quit smoking, you probably don't believe in anything anymore.

If so – and to prove to you that this method is different – return the coupon below, if only out of simple curiosity. You run absolutely no risk of losing any money. The only thing you can lose is your desire to smoke and a postage stamp!

4. When you've stopped smoking you'll suddenly feel a sense of energy you never dreamed you had. You'll be delighted... delighted to realise that day by day your health is improving, to a degree you never dreamed possible.

Also, think how fantastic it will be, how proud of yourself you'll feel, when you can say to people who knew you as a heavy smoker, "No thanks, I quit!"

Important: Since it is part of a national campaign, this free offer can only be guaranteed for a period of 12 days.

By mailing the coupon below today, you will be certain to get your order in on time, and benefit from this amazing opportunity!

DIY – OR HOW TO DEMOLISH IT YOURSELF

I HAVE to agree with Mr Buchanan's letter in the April Cable Guide with regards to the DIY programmes on Discovery Home & Leisure, they do make it seem easy. Unfortunately, whilst I was restoring my pet dog's kennel to its 18th-century glory, I managed to break three fingers and bring down the conservatory on my home. The local hospital love me because my attempted projects keep them busy, but my neighbours won't speak to me until I put the nail gun down! They think that I'm a proper idiot, and they're probably right!

WRESTLING LOSING ITS GRIP?

AM I the only parent who is becoming concerned about the increasing amount of 'adult' content in WWF wrestling, shown on Sky One and Sky Sports? I have allowed my two children to watch this for ten years, since the early days of Hulk Hogan and Macho Man Randy Savage. Back then, it was relatively harmless, goodie versus baddie, family entertainment. These days, however, the wrestlers swear, and make crude gestures. There is a lot of sexual innuendo made towards scantily clad women, and a worrying emphasis on the 'dark side' involving The Undertaker. I realise that times change. I am also aware that the WWF was becoming rather stale and losing popularity. It is just such a shame that the changes have been made at the expense of the kids, who idolise these men so much. I will continue to let them watch WWF, with caution, because I know there will be a full-scale riot if I don't. Come on Mr McMahon, please tone it down a little.

A KURT RESPONSE

I AM very annoyed with MTV and VH1. I flicked through Cable Guide for the 5 April to see which one of the music channels would be airing about Kurt Cobain (the lead guitarist and vocalist for Nirvana who died on 5 April 1994), only to be confronted by 'Take That Live in Berlin'.

The alternative way to Do It Yourself, as experienced by one Discovery Home & Leisure viewer

How can they show a live concert of some boy band, who split up over petty differences, and not show anything in tribute to one of the best and most influential bands in recent history? Kurt's lyrics stood out to millions.

Chris Pearson
e-mail

● An MTV/VH1 spokesman replies: 'MTV and VH1 agree that Nirvana were an extremely talented and influential band. MTV considered featuring Nirvana on 5 April but at that stage we didn't have the right to broadcast material other than their performance at the 1991 Reading Festival (premiered on 9 May) and the singles featured during the week of 5 April. Both MTV and VH1 feel it is more appropriate to pay tribute to Kurt Cobain's birthday than his death. We have, however, just secured the rights to show Nirvana: Unplugged and this will be broadcast on 22 July, at midnight.'

TOPIC OF THE MONTH: SKY SOAP SLIPS AWAY

The subject that provoked the most response this month was the cancellation of Sky Soap. Here's a selection of letters ...

I AM wondering if other viewers feel the same as I do upon hearing that Sky Soap has closed down. I am absolutely devastated, especially at losing my favourite soap, Guiding Light.

Mrs P Cantopher
Kent

WHEN Take the High Road began showing again on Sky

Soap, I was over the moon. I could watch my favourite soap from the beginning and fill in the blanks I missed while working. This harmless, sometimes funny soap is unique in that it upholds integrity and a certain morality that no longer can be said for the soaps of the modern day. I thought it was too good to last!

Cathy Schneider
Whitley Bay

I AM a retired gent, and my wife and myself have religiously watched Emmerdale Farm, the late Eighties series, which we reckon is a thousand times better than today's series. The story was getting so exciting and now we have been left high and dry.

Brian Cowling
Essex

● A Sky spokesman replies: 'We made the decision to double the hours of The History Channel in place of Sky Soap in response to viewers' feedback. The number of soaps available from channels such as Sky One, Granada Plus, Living and UK Gold offer a rich and varied line-up of series. We apologise if this move has caused any inconvenience to any of our viewers.'

BOWLING ME OVER

THANK you to Sky Sports for a brilliant winter's cricket coverage. I have been glued to my TV set watching cricket in Australia, South Africa, the West Indies and Sharjah. The Test matches have been brilliant and the one day internationals have been enthralling with some very exciting close finishes. I hope Sky will continue to show other Test series during our winter months, not just England's tour but others as well. South Africa are great to watch, and Australia are so professional. It gives us cricket fans a chance to see other teams perform on their own soil in contrast to English conditions. Do keep up the good work, Sky Sports.

IRWINNING COMBINATION

WHAT a 'ripper' of a show, or shall I say afternoon of shows, on Animal Planet on 9 April. I found Steve Irwin absolutely 'bonza' in these wildlife documentaries and it was wonderful seeing him wrestle crocodiles, handle deadly snakes and do treacherous rock-climbing whilst wearing those just-as-dangerous tight shorts. But the best thing by far was hearing all the funny phrases. I found myself watching the programmes not only to see the brilliant footage of deadly snakes but just to find out what expression he would come up with next. Fantastic! Thanks to cable for showing these programmes. Is there a Steve Irwin fan club?

Sharon Brook

● Steve doesn't have an official fan club, but you can write to him at QLD Reptile and Fauna Park, Beerwah, QLD 4519, Glasshouse Mountains, Tourist Road, Australia. Or e-mail Steve at QReptile@ozemail.com.au

FANTASTIC CABLE

THIS is probably a message with a difference for you! I'd like to congratulate cable for being the best network in the whole world. I'd also like to congratulate Cable Guide for being the best magazine in the world. You have everything that you want in a magazine and more – I love it! I did a Friends project at school and the articles in this magazine about Friends helped me loads.
